LORD'S DAY BILL BEFORE HOUSE

Sunday Evening Work on Newspapers Will Not be Sinful.

DEBATE LASTS ALL DAY

Magnificent Aggregate Presented By Economical Government's Estimates.

OTTAWA, June 20.—(Special.)—All estimates for the coming fiscal year are now before parliament and they reach the appalling total of ninety and three quarter millions or five million more than this year. The supplementary estimates for the fiscal period of nine months from July next until March 31, 1907, were brought down tonight; the total being $4,067,916. Added to the main estimates of $72,604,463 brought down some weeks ago the total is $77,272,380 for nine months equivalent to a 12 months appropriation of $90,755,579 as compared with $85,852,604 in the year just closing.

British Columbia's items in the supplementaries include the following: Nelson public building improvements including fittings, etc., $1,400.

Williamhead Quarantine station improvements, repairs, supplies, etc., $10,000.

Steamer for quarantine, $35,000.

Fraser river, removal of obstructions to navigation between Quesnel and Soda Creek, $2,000.

Kootenay river, removal of snags, etc., between Kootenay Landing and the international boundary, $2,000.

Ladysmith wharf enlargement, $1,000.

Pitt river, substitution of a 200 feet through truss for original 132 feet truss of draw span on C. P. R. bridge, inclusive of accessory works, $55,085.

Sidney Island wharf, $2,000.

South Thompson river, removal of sand and gravel bars, $8,000.

Ashcroft-Barkerville telegraph line, to pay James Trodden amount due him on work performed, $5,513 at Ashcroft. Lillooett branch line, $500; Lower Nicola-Penticton extension via Granite Creek, Princeton, Hedley Keremeos and Fairview additional amount $5,500. Quesnelle Barkerville branch line renewals and repairs, $750.

Gratuity to the widow of the late Capt. John Dezereux, dockmaster at Esquimalt drowned while in the performance of his duties, $1,000.

Hydrographic steamer for British Columbia, $100,000.

Estimate of present value of gold gravels of Klondike, $12,000.

Amount for cleansing Indian orchards, British Columbia, $1,500.

Relief to Indians who lost their property and houses in a landslide at Spences Bridge, $1,000.

Amount to assist in rebuilding wharf at Metlakatla, $700.

Further amount for day-school at Columbia, $1,900.

Completion of works at Esquimalt, $1,500.

The Telephone Bill.

The special committee on new telephone clauses of the railway act decided to report the bill today with certain changes. Hon. Mr. Emmerson announced that the Grand Trunk had ceased discrimination against members of parliament in the matter of reservation of sleeping berths. Neither the C. P. R. nor the C. N. R. had adopted the practice. He also gave notice that the government would bring down legislation to place express companies under the jurisdiction of a railway commission thereby accepting the principle of the Alcorn's bill.

The government majority on the Arctic committee refused to permit the appointment of experts to investigate into the question of supplies by personal examination on board the Arctic.

The MacKintosh Divorce.

The Commons private bills committee reported today the Aileen Mary MacKintosh divorce bill which was referred back by the house yesterday by a majority of 17 to 3. The bill granting the divorce will now pass to the house as a matter of course. Respondent practically withdrew opposition today after making a protest.

The house held a first morning session today. Mr. Barr told by Mr. Lemieux that the publication Age of Reason had been re-admitted to the privileges of the Canadian mails because having been disciplined its tone had improved. The postmaster general intimated that Canada had refused to deliver as second class matter certain United States publications which did not come within second class postal regulations of the Dominion. The Lords Day bill was full of difficulties but there was a general demand for it in the country and the house should pass it. Mr. Bourassa characterised the bill as the most absurd, dangerous, mediaeval legislation ever introduced into a parliament.

The Sunday Bill

The debate continued all day. An amendment of Piche, Moutreal, allowing provincial legislatures to exempt within its jurisdiction any calling from the operation of the act, was negatived after an urgent appeal of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Hon. Mr. Aylesworth, only five voted for it. Johnston, Cape Breton, secured the insertion of an amendment allowing the pumping of mines on Sunday notwithstanding that Ralph Smith thought the exemption clause sufficiently effective. An amendment of Mr. Pringle's to permit freight trains to continue to their destination on Sunday, was lost. Sub-clause "O" provided for any unavoidable work after eight o'clock in the afternoon of the Lord's Day in preparation of the regular Monday morning edition of daily newspapers. Duncan Ross said this would prevent papers from reporting a murder or any other events occuring before eight o'clock. He suggested that the section should read: "Any unavoidable work on the Lord's Day in preparation of the regular morning edition of a daily newspaper." The amendment was lost and the section was carried.

Mr. Lavergne, Montgomery, moved a new subsection, providing for the "printing, distribution and sale of newspapers printed before six o'clock in the forenoon of the 'Lord's Day.'" This was rejected.

Mr. Gallihier moved a subsection providing for any work in connection with the preparation and publication of a regular Sunday morning edition of daily newspapers. This was necessary he said in British Columbia because papers had been regularly issued there on Sunday instead of Monday for forty years, and it would be unfair to force newspapers there to change their entire system. Hon. Mr. Aylesworth said this would leave the way open to the regular publication by all papers on Sunday. This amendment was also rejected. Progress was reported and the house adjourned.

Reforming the Senate

Senator Perley today propounded an unique plan for filling senatorial vacancies. He had two plans for the reform of the senate to make it independent and not partisan. When a vacancy occurred he would have the clerk of the senate notify the prime minister and leader of the opposition of the Commons, and the chief justice of the province in which the vacancy occurred. The chief justice would proclaim that

ARGONAUTS MAKE A GRAND IMPRESSION

England's Greatest Authority Says Crew Is Most Powerful He Ever Saw.

HENLEY, Eng., June 20.—The Argonauts of Toronto, were afloat today and this evening were seen to advantage over nearly the full course. From the standpoint of physique the Canadians have made a splendid impression. Sir John Edward Moss, one of England's greatest amateur authorities, says it is the most powerful crew he ever saw. Other experts express a similar opinion, saying the Argonauts have a good chance to take the grand challenge cup from England for the first time. It is generally admitted in English rowing circles that the third Trinity, Cambridge is the only crew likely to trouble the Canadians unless the Belgians should prove good.

AN INHUMAN MISTRESS.

Wife of Wealthy Brewer Accused of Killing Her Maid.

Sioux Falls, S. D., June 20.—Mrs. Emma Kauffman, wife of a wealthy Sioux Falls brewer, was given a preliminary hearing today on a charge of having caused the death of her maid servant, Agnes Polreis. She was hissed when she was brought into the courtroom, and when she came out an angry demonstration was made and cries of "lynch her" were heard. As a result of the hearing, Mrs. Kauffman was held on a charge of murder. The case will be called for trial in November. Miss Polreis, who was 17 years old, died June 1st, and was buried at Parkston in this state. The body was lated exhumed and was found to bear 45 separate wounds.

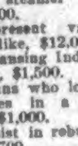

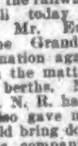

ROOSEEVLT APPEALED TO

U. S. President Receives Protests Against Murder of Jews.

Washington, D. C., June 20.—Protests have reached President Roosevelt against the outrages against the Jews which are being committed in Russia. Simon Wolff, former president of the Bnai Brith, had a talk with the president today. He told the president he was receiving telegrams and letters from all parts of the United States, protesting against the massacres, and urging this country to take some action in the matter. President Roosevelt expressed sincere sympathy with the oppressed people, but was unable to see how the United States government under the circumstances could do anything to prevent the outrages.

TRAGIC MESSAGE ON ISLAND COAST

Bottle Drifts Ashore Near Ucluelet Purporting to be From Life Raft.

SAYS J. MELDREN IS ALIVE

Dated on June 5th and Asks For Rescue---Life Buoy Also Drifts Ashore.

"ON life raft hundred miles off Columbia bar. John Meldren alive, come to my rescue. June fifth, nineteen six."

This message was contained in a bottle which drifted on Long Beach, Vancouver island yesterday morning. It was given into custody of Constable Kvarne of the provincial police who telgraphed to Superintendent Hussey of the provincial police regarding the find.

Who is John Meldren? Is he the survivor of others who have succumbed? Is he a survivor of a disaster? Is he still alive after the lapse of 15 days from the time the message was written? These are a few of the questions suggested by the purport of the message, which, if genuine, gives scanty news of a probable sea tragedy. On the other hand the question also suggests itself; Is the message a fabricated one sent adrift by some persons with a misconceived idea of humor? There is nothing but the brief telegram received by the superintendent of provincial police stating that a bottle has drifted ashore with the above message.

The message telegraphed by Constable Kvarne also gave news of the finding on Long Beach of a life buoy marked, "Louis, San Francisco."

In all probability this life buoy was washed ashore from the schooner Louis of San Francisco which left Portland, Ore., on May 20th with a cargo of lumber for San Francisco, and was last reported on June 15th at the Golden Gate where she is probably anchored still.

Supt. F. S. Hussey of the provincial police is anxious to learn any further information concerning the message contained in the bottle.

THE DREYFUS CASE.

Paris, June 20.—Matre Moras, in the supreme court today resumed his presentation of the Dreyfus case. He argued that many officials and subordinates of the ministry of war had the same access to the secret papers as Dreyfus, whereas the latter had no knowledge of the mobilization plans which had been communicated to foreign governments.

CONTRACTORS CENSURED

New York, June 20.—A coroner's jury which has been investigating the cause of numerous deaths in the city, where tunnels are being constructed for the Pennsylvania railroad, returned a verdict today, censuring the contractors Pearson and Sons of London, for their method of handling the workmen.

CORNER PASTE SUPPLY

Tobacco Firms Held Not Guilty Combining to Restrain Trade.

New York, June 20.—Pleas of not guilty of unlawful combination in the restraint of trade was returned in the United States circuit court today by Karl Jungbluth, president of the Andrews and Forbes company and Howard T. Young, president of the J. S. Young company. It is charged that the defendants sought to corner the paste supply which is used in the manufacture of plug tobacco.

U. S. SENATE TALKS OF MEAT INSPECTION

Agricultural Appropriation Bill Discussed by Members Yesterday.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 20.—Senator Proctor today called up in the senate the agricultural appropriation bill and made the usual motion for agreement to a request for a conference. He said there were two essential points of difference between the two house amendments to the meat inspection amendments. One was the omission by the house of the senate provision requiring that the date of inspection be placed on cans containing meat, and the other the transfer of the cost of inspection from the packers to the national treasury. Speaking of the latter change, he said that it was radical, and in his opinion unwise, and advised that the house amendment on that point be not accepted. The packers, he declared could afford the expense as an advertisement, for, looked at in that light, the government certificate would be of immense benefit. Senator Beveridge agreed with Mr. Proctor as to the unwisdom in the matter of the date of manufacture and cost of inspection. The two essential changes he considered as most important, declaring that if the date is not to be used, will be impossible to pass of as fresh meat, that which may have been inspected five years ago. He said that the date is stamped on meat shipped abroad, and argued that the same plan should be pursued with reference to

Meat Consumed at Home

He said the packers alone are responsible for the agitation that has been aroused, but predicted that in the end, the result would be a restoration of confidence, and therefore beneficial. He credited the prospective success of the measure to the president who has stood firmly from the beginning for the most complete inspection bill on the statute books of any country. Senator Lodge also spoke for the senate provision. He pleaded especially for the dating of labels because the public has the right to know what it is buying. He thought the packers should pay the cost of the inspection. He did not agree that the consumers would not feel the effect of the tax for judging the future by the past, the packers would find in a tax of a few mills, an excuse for an increase of several cents a pound on the meat they sell and a similar decrease on the stock they buy. He charged the Chicago packers with trying to defeat the legislation. The attack from abroad did not alarm Mr. Lodge very much for he said that practices in foreign countries are not a bit better than our own. He defended the inspection report of Messrs. Neil and Reynolds, saying that their charges had been justified by the orders given by the Chicago city government for greater cleanliness.

CONVICT COMMITS SUICIDE

New York, June 20.—His mind temporarily unbalanced on account of the disgrace he had brought upon his family, Terance Keenan, 27 years old, a prisoner in the King's county penitentiary, killed himself today by jumping from a fire escape to the courtyard, a distance of 70 feet. Keenan was serving a two months' sentence for assault.

PACKERS RESPONSIBILITIES

Insensate Greed Does More to Advance Anarchy Than Socialists

Washington, D. C., June 20.—In discussing the agricultural appropriation in the senate today, Mr. Lodge, referring to the group of men in control of the packing industries, said the history had been one of utter defiance of law and public opinion. He referred to a recent published interview with Nelson Morris, in which the great packer showed contempt for writers of books, and the Massachusetts senator said as the writing of a book had brought about the present situation, it may occur to the packers that "the writing of books is not so contemptible." The men responsible for the meat packing and Standard Oil monopolies, said Mr. Lodge have done more to advance Socialism, anarchy, unrest and unwholesome conditions in the United States than all of the Socialists in the world. He said the people would resent their food being tampered with and made sport of for mere insenate greed for money, and that they are rightly insisting that these packers be put on the same basis as other manufacturers.

BRECHIN MINE TO CLOSE INDEFINITELY

Business Paralysis at 'Frisco Causes Glut in the Coal Market.

NANAIMO, B. C., June 20.—(Special).—President Howard, of the Western Fuel company, arrived yesterday from San Francisco, and after consultation with the local management, the colliery company has decided to close the Brechin mine down on Saturday for an indefinite period. Mr. Howard says that business in San Francisco has been completely paralyzed by the earthquake and the consumption of coal has been curtailed to such an extent that with the 'Frisco bunkers and yards of the company running over with coal this step has been found necessary. In the meantime No. 1 mine will be kept working full time as the sale of enough coal has been obtained to guarantee this. There are 800 men working in No. 1 now and in addition to this work will be found almost immediately for about 150 men from Brechin leaving about 200 men out of employment. Nanaimo is not the only coal centre to suffer by the 'Frisco disaster as the two Coos bay mines have been shut down. The Washington mines having little direct business with San Francisco are not affected to any great extent. Asked how long the Brechin mines would remain closed, no definite answer was given, but it was considered possible that it would be to the end of the year. Mr. Howard is now interested in the Western Building and Supply company, an offshoot of the Western Fuel company which has sprung into an important business in view of the present situation in California. Most of his time is now occupied with this company.

GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER

Montreal, June 20.—Jas. Thos. Hackett, found guilty on Saturday of manslaughter in connection with the death of Edith May Ahern, five years old, on April 3rd, was, this morning, sentenced to twenty-five years' imprisonment.

GENERAL STRIKE ORDERED

Bellingham, Wash., June 20.—Tonight the time limit for the settling of the difference between the mill owners and shingle weavers of Ballard expired and word was sent out from Ballard ordering all union men of the Sound to go out on a sympathetic strike. About 2,500 shingle weavers are affected directly by the order and it is possible that in the neighborhood of 5,000 men will be thrown out of work as a result. Many of the millmen have announced their intention of closing down their entire plants if the weavers do not return to work in the morning. In Bellingham, 250 men went out tonight and word is now being sent to all mills throughout the Sound country ordering the union men to quit work in the morning.

HEBREWS APPEAL FOR RUSSIAN JEWS

Leading Jews of England and the United States Revive Agitation.

THE RUSSIAN MASSACRES

Labor Party Will Insist on the Foreign Secretary Treating Subject Diplomatically.

LONDON, June 21.—Mr. Montefiore, president of the Zionist faction and Israel Zangwill president of the Jewish territorial organization presented a joint appeal through the newspapers this morning to the prominent Jews of Great Britain and the United States on behalf of the oppressed Russian Jews. They remark that the United States senators adoption of a bill to further restrict immigration threatens to close even this land of refuge without opening another, and say therefore, it is more than ever urgent to find permanent means of grappling with the Jewish question and have a future abiding place for the oppressed Jews of the world.

In the House of Commons, Walter Runciman, parliamentary secretary to the local government board on behalf of Foreign Secretary Grey, again declined to inform the government of Russia the views of the British people concerning the anti-Jewish outrage. He said that the impression made and the sympathy aroused, not only in this country but everywhere, by the disturbances and loss of life in Russia, were well known to the Russian government and they were not matters in which official diplomatic intervention was usual or desirable.

Labor Men Active

Labor members of parliament intend to put further questions to the government today with a view to pressing it to protest to St. Petersburg against the anti-Jewish uprisings. Foreign Secretary Grey's attitude in declining to inform the Russian government of the views of the British people concerning the outbreaks is the cause of much dissatisfaction. This is the views held by the Daily Graphic and the Tribune, both of which oppose the sending of a British squadron to Kronstadt next month.

Colonial Settlement Scheme

Parliamentary papers were issued containing the report of the departmental committee appointed by Arthur Lyttleton, when he was secretary for the colonies to inquire into R. Rider Haggard's recommendation for the establishment of agricultural settlements in the British colonies. The report is unfavorable. It recommends that the government takes no steps at present to further the scheme of colonization and suggests that the government make a grant to committees formed under the unemployed working act under certain conditions or that a grant be given the immigration information office which should be entrusted the arrangements, if a special fund is allotted completing their terms of service to emigrate to the colonies. The committee favors placing persons in the colonies and leaving them to work out their own scheme of living. The committee regards the management by a religious body (referring to the Salvation Army) as undesirable. The committee also believes the expense would be greater than has been calculated and that the prospects of return of money advanced would be uncertain.

To Assist Soldiers

"Whether we turn to Canada, South Africa or Australia," the report says, "we fail to find an instance of a thorough successful effort at colonization."

TO ORGANIZE A CABINET.

London, June 20.—The Tribune's correspondent at St. Petersburg asserts that Emperor Nicholas is urging General Trepoff to organize a cabinet and that the Emperor has summoned M. Podonoseff, former Procurator of the Holy Synod, to an audience tonight. A despatch from Riasan to the same paper reports that the Bolchieff regiment has mutinied and killed several of its officers.

MILLERS MASS MEETING

Milwaukee, June 20.—The fourth annual mass convention of millers under the auspices of the millers' national federation, opened a three days' meeting to Milwaukee. Over a thousand millers are in attendance. President John A. Burke, in delivering the annual address, said among other things that the organization was against manipulation and was for high standard grades of wheat in all markets, improvement in government crop reports and enlargement of export trade. He hoped for good results from rate legislation. The pernicious rebate, he said must be stopped.

FIRE AT GRAND FORKS

Grand Forks, B. C., June 20.—(Special.)—At 7:30 this evening fire broke out in the up stairs of the Alberta hotel. The fire department did good work with three streams of water and extinguished the blaze in about ten minutes. The damage done will probably be $1,000 to the building and hotel furniture. If this fire had got more headway it would have burnt the entire block, some $65,000 worth of hotel and business houses. The Alberta hotel was just being refitted by S. Nelson, who recently bought it for $5,000.

he would hold an election in the senate chamber on a certain day. The prime minister would appoint eight of his cabinet, the leader of the opposition would appoint six of his followers. The chief justice would appoint three. This would make twenty, seventeen appointed and a prime minister and leader of the opposition and the chief justice. Each of these twenty would have a right to cast one ballot for a man to fill the vacancy. This would give the government an advantage in this electoral college. The ballots cast by these twenty men would decide who was to fill the vacancy. Senator Perley thought their decision would result in a non-partizan choice. Senator Landry, "What if each of twenty should vote for himself?" (Laughter). Senator Perley said this was impossible. His second plan was to have the governor general make the appointments without the advice of his council.

IT HEALS THE LUNGS.
When the antiseptic vapor of "Catarrhozone" is inhaled it spreads through the breathing organs, carrying healing and health to the sore spots. An irritable throat "Catarrhozone" cures in five minutes, bronchitis it soothes instantly, weak lungs are fed and quickly nourished back to health. To be free from colds and coughs, to avoid catarrh, and bronchitis—use Catarrhozone; it is prescribed by more than twenty thousand physicians in America alone, and used by the people of nine nations.

New Exhibits.—Several new exhibits are expected to be in place before Saturday next in the Tourist rooms. They will include a show of Victoria-made trunks and valises made by Mr. Fred. Norris. It is also expected that Messrs. Smith & Champion will fill their space, and also the Victoria Chemical Works, the latter with a display of fertilizers.

THE WONDERS OF THE BODY
Its mechanism, like delicate machinery, by even a slight cause is so disarranged as to be practically useless. A headache is no trifling matter because the stomach, kidneys and liver are sure to be affected. To cure the cause of headaches and prevent new attacks, use Ferrozone, it aids the stomach by supplying nourishing blood, vitalizes the nerves and brain instantly. Ferrozone braces—gives tone—elevates your spirits. No such health bringer known. Fifty cents per box of fifty chocolate coated tablets at all dealers.

Princess Sails.—The steamer Princess Beatrice sailed last night for Skagway and the steamer Queen City for Cape Scott and way ports of the west coast. Both steamers were well filled with passengers and freight.

Masonic Grand Lodge.—The Dominion hotel is the headquarters of a party of about forty-five delegates who represent most of the towns in British Columbia, who are here to attend the grand lodge session of the A. F. & A. M., which opens in the Masonic hall, Douglas street, today.

Hickey-Palmer.—The pretty church of St. Luke's, Cedar Hill, was the scene of a quiet little wedding yesterday afternoon when Nellie, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. Pauline, of Oak Bay, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Daniel Louis Hickey, the well known electrician of Seattle. The Rev. Mr. Connell, rector of St. Luke's church, officiated at the ceremony. A reception was afterwards held at the home of the parents of the bride, when the happy couple received the congratulations of their many friends, and later in the evening left by the Princess Victoria for Seattle en route for California. On their return they will make their home in Seattle.

Successful Social.—A most successful and enjoyable strawberry social and concert was held last evening in the schoolroom of the First Presbyterian Sunday school. The Ladies' Aid had arranged a very fine programme, songs being given by the following: Mrs. Gregson, Misses M. Wilson, Howell and Wilkerson and Messrs. J. G. Brown, P. Gordon, Adamson and Bremner. Miss Lenore Black gave selections on the violin. All the items on the programme received encores. Mrs. Lewis Hall acted as accompanist. A very good item on the programme was a Scotch reading by Mr. J. G. Brown. Every one present enjoyed the supper to the full extent, and the Ladies' Aid are to be congratulated on their success.

Lumber Mills Active.—And still another new market for lumber has been opened up to the local mills. For several years all the orders for lumber, used in Hongkong, have been placed in the United States, and probably the companies would have retained them, but the Chinese boycott on United States manufacturers some little time ago, gave local firms a good chance for new business, with the result that Messrs. Lemon, Gonason & Co., have orders to send by each steamer which leaves this port for Hongkong, a fairly large shipment of lumber, generally about 40,000 feet. It is very likely that these orders will increase considerably. All the local mills are now working to their full capacity, and the orders for shipments of lumber to the Yukon and the Northwest seem to be placed equally amongst local firms. The Shawnigan Lake Lumber Co.'s mill on the lake is now turning out about 60,000 feet per day, and the orders are coming in so plentifully, that the mill is kept up to this output.

THEY ALL FAILED.
Many have tried to devise a corn cure equal to Putnam's, but after fifty years nothing has come upon the market that so readily and painlessly cures corns and warts. Don't experiment, use the best, and that's Putnam's.

INFANTRY INSPECTION FINISHED LAST NIGHT

Interesting and Instructive Skirmishing Takes Place at Macaulay Plains.

Infantry inspection by Capt. Muspratt-Williams, R. A., was concluded last night at the camp of the Fifth Regiment, C. A., at Macaulay Plains after some interesting and instructive skirmishing and general infantry work was carried out by No. 3 Company, and some files from No. 1. The inspection commenced on the previous evening when No. 1 Company under Capt. Currie was sent away with orders to bring an imaginary convoy to Fort Macaulay from Esquimalt to relieve a distressed garrison. No. 2 Company, under Capt. Langley, was ordered to locate and attack, if feasible, the incoming convoy, which with wheeled carts could come only by road. The convoy proceeded by way of Lampson street with forces covering its flanks, and it reached a position near the high rocks not far from the camp where a force of Capt. Langley's men opened fire.

The post mortem of the engagement is being fought out since in the messes of the camp, and it has not yet been decided whether the convoy reached the fort or the attack was successfully carried out. It seems that the orders did not make it clear wrether the strength of the fort was too weak to allow of the neighborhood being protected. If so, Capt. Langley's attacking party could not have reached the position from which they delivered the main attack on the convoy (really it was some drums which were to represent the wagons loaded with food for the beleaguered garrison).

Last night the orders issued provided for a defending force under Major Ridgway Wilson to occupy some ridges extending on the borders of Macaulay plains, and while a small force under Capt. Harris fired as much as possible from the higher kopjes to give the impression that the main body was located there, an opposing force under Major Hibben was to attack the defenders. The ruse arranged proved sufficiently deceptive. It seems that Major Hibben thinking the small party under Capt. Harris was the enemy's main strength sent parties to the right and left rear to launch an attack against the flanks of the kopje while his main force rushed it. The attacks at left and right rear were not delivered when the impatient main force, taking cover well, advanced against the hill. While this advance was in progress a flank attack was delivered with considerable success by Major Wilson on the right rear of the assailing force, which was fairly caught. The "cease fire" was then sounded, and the inspection ended, after some exceedingly instructive work, Capt. Muspratt-Williams, the inspecting officer, pointed out critically the cause and effect of the operations, praising the work of the militiamen, after the officers were assembled.

No. 2 Company, under Capt. Langley, were last night engaged in firing practice with the six inch guns at Fort Macaulay, under inspection by Lieut. Ellison, R. A. The guns were fitted with Morris tubes for one-inch ammunition and a floating target was towed by a launch in the Roads. In all 125 rounds of ammunition were expended. To add to the instruction of the gun crews the officers changed the arrangements constantly. Lieut. Ellison passed the second half dozen of the gun-layers of the company last night, making a total of twelve gun-layers who have qualified.

No. 1 Company, under Capt. Angus, was hard at work with the eighteen pounder field guns, the greater part of the evening being spent in gun-laying, the gunners doing some excellent work.

A court martial was held last night on seven men who were arrested by the camp police. It seems that after the infantry practice of Tuesday night eight men kept some of the unexpended ammunition and planned to have a little night encounter of their own long after "lights out" was followed by the men tucking themselves away in their blankets. In the silent hours about 2 a. m. four assembled at the rendezvous and were promptly placed under arrest by some officers, including Col. Hall, whom they found waiting for them. The other four who came to deliver the night attack saw the awaiting officers and ran, with the Colonel and others hot on their heels. Until 3:30 a. m. the delinquents were pursued, an apprehended. They were placed in the guard tent, and last night after the work of the evening was done Col. Hall held a court martial. The seven prisoners were brought before him, and were released with a caution. What the Colonel said to them was severe and strong.

The camp of this year has no place for the pranks of former years, it is all for work. The camp will continue until Wednesday next, when the tents will be struck.

Bad Attack of Dysentery Cured.
"An honored citizen of this town was suffering from a severe attack of dysentery. He told a friend if he could obtain a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, he felt confident of being cured, he having used this remedy in the West. He was told that I kept it in stock and lost no time in obtaining it, and was promptly cured," says M. J. Leach, Druggist, of Wolcott, Vt. Every family should be provided with a bottle of this remedy. It is almost certain to be needed sooner or later, and when that time comes it will be needed badly. For sale by all Druggists.

"A TELLING EXAMPLE.
Montreal Gazette:
In the course of a speech at the 43rd anniversary dinner of the Press Fund, Mr. Whitelaw Reid, who presided, after paying some high compliments to British journalism, quoted one of the pithy sayings of that "fine old combination of the Hebrew prophet and Massachusetts Yankee"—Edward Everett Hale. The saying that he selected was: "You can never lead unless you lift." Now it so happened that just then there had been a curious discussion in the Commons of an item in the estimate providing for a "life" for the House of Lords. Mr. Ward (representing the Labor party) proposed to reduce the appropriation by £700. Mr. Ward began to explain that his motion was prompted by retaliation, owing to the rejection by the oLrds of the Aliens bill, a measure dear to the Labor party, but the chairman reminded him that the action of the House of Lords could not be discussed in that way. Later, on motion for adjournment, Mr. Keir Hardie indirectly arraigned the government for allowing the Aliens bill to be rejected in the Lords after being sent up unanimously from the popular house. Why had not some member of the cabinet taken the responsibility, so as to ensure at least a second reading? Mr. Keir Hardie closed his remarks by asking how long an assembly that ignored the people's duties was going to be countenanced, and British democracy turned into a sham. In the ensuing debate, it was urged, more than once, as tending to aggravate the attitude of the Lords towards the Aliens bill, that the measure had passed through all its stages in the lower house practically unopposed. Lord R. Cecil interposed at this point a criticism which must have arrested the attention of thoughtful men who were not wholly enslaved to faction. He admitted that the aliens bill had passed unimpeded through the House of Commons. For his own part, he regretted that, so noiseless had its course been that he, for one (and others, doubtless, without distinction of party, could say the same) had had no opportunity whatever of learning anything about its nature or object. He acknowledged that the abolition or remodeling of the House of Lords was a quiet intelligible policy, of which they had not then heard for the first time. But, so long as that house survived and was permitted to exercise its functions, it was surely irrational to find fault with that ancient assembly merely because it discharged its duties.

Lord R. Cecil, had he considered the moment opportune, might have demonstrated that the rejection of the Aliens bill was an admirable example of the very best service that an upper house can render by the performance of one of its essential duties. Those duties were not necessarily negative or obstructive. A useful measure gained in authority by the sanction of a highly cultivated body of men, exceptionally in touch with the ripened opinion of the country and almost instinctively alive to the tendency of any kind of legislation. We have often heard, during the last fifty years, of the necessity of modifying the composition of the House of Lords, and sometims of th urgncy of extinguishing it. Our readers have probably not forgotten Mr. Gladstone's party bequest to the heir of his choice—to lay violent hands on his own political rooftree. The situation was an absurd one for Lord Roseberry, and had he not been a man of unusual ability, would have made him look very ridiculous, indeed. The brief with which his veteran leader entrusted himsmarked the culmination of a movement, never quite sincere on the part of its official leaders, but fiercely hostile on the part of certain henchmen whose support has become more and more essential to the party. Nothing could have evinced more strikingly the perplexity of the present government in the face of prejudices voiced by Messrs. Ward, Keir Hardie and others, than its manner of dealing with this Aliens bill. In the House of Lords, Earl Beauchamp cut (morally) a queer figure when he stood up to explain the government's neutrality as to the Aliens bill. Lord Lansdowne, recalling some old letters and perhaps glancing for a moment at Mr. Hardy's fiele heroine, refrained from repeating the stronger language of the epistle, but he made the government's supporters feel the shame of the reproach of Laodicea. A measure to which the government gave so little heed—a measure, moreover, which had slipped almost unnoticed through the Commons—was hardly a measure worthy of the support of the House of Lords. What was the purpose of this Aliens bill? Its object was to forbid the landing in any part of the United Kingdom of an alien brought under contract from abroad with the intention of taking the place of a workman pending a trade dispute. It was, in fact, a sort of rider or supplement to the more comprehensive Aliens bill of 1905.

After Lord Lansdowne had suggested that, if the government assumed responsibility for the bill, it might be given a second reading, in order that it might obtain further consideration, the House rejected it by a vote of 95 to 24. It is not necessary just at present to indicate the weak points of such a bill. What is especially timely in connection with its apparition, is that, to please the Labor party, the government permitted—the measure to be spirited through the Commons, while its true nature, object and possibilities of mischief were practically unknown. The abnormal majority of the government makes such a proceeding only too easy. But it had not yet reached the goal which made it law. It had still to be inspected by the watchdogs of the constitution known as the House of Lords—a body so ancient that its true beginnings have never been established; yet in some respects more in touch with the needs and aspirations of our Empire and our age than the "Imperial" House of Commons. And, allowance being made for certain differences, the plea that is urged for the House of Lords is a plea for other second houses—the idea of development and reform being, however, kept constantly in mind.

STOMACH INDIGESTION.
Peruna Strikes at the Root of the Trouble.

MR. S. J. MASSEY.
Mr. S. J. Massey, formerly a resident of Toronto, and a well-known business man, writes from 247 Guy street, Montreal, Quebec:
"I wish to testify to the good results I have derived from the use of Peruna.
"Having been troubled for several years with catarrh of the head, I decided to give Peruna a fair trial and I can truly say I have received great benefit from its use.
"It evidently strikes at the very root of the trouble and good results are soon noticeable.
"I have also found Peruna a very valuable remedy for stomach trouble and indigestion.
"I have no hesitancy whatever in recommending Peruna as a reliable catarrh remedy."
There are several kinds of indigestion. The trouble may be due to sluggishness of the liver, derangements of the bowels, enlargement of the pancreas, or it may be due to the stomach itself.
In nearly all cases of stomach indigestion catarrh is the cause. The only permanent cure is to remove the catarrh.
Peruna has become well-known the world over as a remedy in such cases.

LAST CHANCE

For you to buy stock in the Uncle Sam Oil Company of Kansas, and secure the first dividend, is now very limited. Furthermore, wise investors from all over the United States are purchasing the stock very rapidly, as can be proven by the books. Cash paid in for refined oil and stock for week ending Saturday night, June 2nd, 1906, was $23,388.00, while for week ending Saturday night, June 9th, is $29,000.00. In addition to this, over $25,000.00 has been subscribed on gilt edge contract stock during the two weeks above mentioned, which will be paid in during the next five months, which means a grand net total of a little over $75,000.00 in two weeks' time. Where can you find another stock as active as this at 20 per cent of par? This giant independent enterprise has a great work to complete, and that it is going to place the balance of its stock and rush this great work to immediate completion is now an absolute certainty.

The public in general despises the methods of the criminal oil trust, and from everywhere comes the demand for independent oil in fact, as well as name. Uncle Sam, with its loyal band of over eight (8,000) thousand stockholders, representing every state and territory in the Union and also Canada and Old Mexico, presents a mountain of strength and influence that even the dirty millions of the aggressive trusts and all the falsehoods, hindrances and other annoyances put up by their different hirelings does not, has not, and can not delay the Uncle Sam Oil Company of Kansas in its onward march to success. Every hour Uncle Sam is growing stronger. From the banks of the Arkansas at Tulsa, Indian Territory, where Uncle Sam Refinery No 3 is being built, at the different oil fields, at Uncle Sam Refinery No. 1 at Cherryvale, along the main trunk pipe line clear across Kansas to the banks of navigation at Atchison, where Uncle Sam Refinery No. 2 is nearing completion, Uncle Sam's different departments are rapidly wheeling into line for successful action.

Only about eight (8) per cent of the stock remains unsold. Inquiries for stock are coming into the home office by the hundreds, while every hour telegrams are being received for stock reservation, and letters by the hundreds are arriving on every mail. A few minutes at the home office would convince you that Uncle Sam stock was in great demand, and then remember that over one quarter million dollars have been subscribed at the same price asked herein of you, while all this money has been added for new equipment and for legitimate purposes necessary to the advancement of the Uncle Sam main trunk pipe line and the Uncle Sam chain of three (3) great refineries. In time Uncle Sam will build up to a capacity of eighteen (18,000) thousand barrels daily, while stock is now rapidly selling is sure to increase to several times par value and pay increased dividends. To secure the first dividend your Remittances Must Be in the Mails by Midnight, June 20, 1906.

DIVIDEND BOOKS SOON CLOSE

Money Is Pouring In—Work All Along the Line Going Forward With a Vim.

Remittances for Uncle Sam stock have been doubling up so rapidly that the company has been able to push pipe line and refining construction considerably faster than was ever contemplated at this stage of the proceedings.

Money Wired to Pittsburg to Hurry Up the Pipe Line.

For the past two months Uncle Sam has been receiving pipe line just as the money could be spared to pay for same and not delay the completion of the two refineries now building. However, during the past two weeks remittances have increased so rapidly that one payment was wired through to Pittsburg in order to rush pipe line shipments, and the Byers mills, of Pittsburg, are now giving right of way for Uncle Sam pipe line pipe and during the next six weeks Uncle Sam will deliver and complete sixty miles more of main trunk pipe line connecting the great producers on 1,100-acre lot [illegible] with the refinery storage tanks at C[illegible]

The capacity of this [illegible] will be from 2,700 to 3,500 barrels per day, and Uncle Sam can save 25 cents per barrel on each barrel by completing this pipe line and pumping the oil, over freights now being paid the railroads.

Will Then Have 135 Miles Main Trunk Pipe Line Completed.

With the sixty-six miles pipe line completed as before mentioned will give Uncle Sam 135 miles of main trunk pipe line completed. Is not this a pretty good record for the great independent company in fifteen months considering that THREE REFINERIES will have also been completed during that time? Is not this the kind of an enterprise to hook up with? One succeeds generally follows another and don't you know that the difficult barriers against this company have been 100 to 1 in the past more so what they will be in the future, with all the strength of a thoroughly organized company in every department backed by nearly a million dollars cash and over EIGHT THOUSAND stockholders comprising some of the most influential men of the nation.

Three More Pipe Line Boilers Arrive.

At the town of Piqua, near the heart of the Woodson county, Kas., oil fields where Uncle Sam has land purchased and work commenced on the FIFTH main line pumping station the last carload of their large boilers arrived last week and workmen have already unloaded one and the other two will be hustled along to Tyro, Kas., where Uncle Sam has land bought and likewise is building pumping station No. TWO and from there the last one will be rushed on to the Sand Creek pumping station, southwest of Bartlesville, in the Indian Territory, where Uncle Sam has large storage tanks now completed with several miles of lateral lines leading to the same, where Uncle Sam pumping station No. ONE is nearing completion.

First Independent Company to Secure Indian Territory Pipe Line Permit.

The Uncle Sam Company secured a permit from the interior department several weeks ago and commenced at once securing pipe to complete the line. Right-of-way was purchased and money paid the indian agent nearly one month ago. Ten miles of this pipe is now unloaded at Bartlesville and Dewey, while seven miles more has been shipped over a week and by the time you read this will arrive at Copan. Sixteen miles more, enough to start the second pumping station, at Tyro, Kas., is now being rolled and loaded at the mills at Pittsburg and will be crowded forward with all haste consistent with possible good workmanship.

Will Have Close to 2,000 Barrels Daily Production by August 1.

Keeping pace with the pipe line work and completion of the great refinery—Uncle Sam No. 2 on the banks of navigation by Atchison, Uncle Sam has been crowding the work with the drills in order to increase the daily production from our own wells. Figure for yourself what a great income Uncle Sam will soon have.

Should be Over $3,000 Daily by Latter Part of July.

July 4 will be the day the big river refinery will commence turning gold into the Uncle Sam treasury for Uncle Sam stockholders. The plant will start with a daily capacity of six hundred (600) barrels per day. The Cherryville refinery—Uncle Sam No. 1—which has been in successful operation for the past two months, has a capacity of three hundred (300) barrels daily, so by July 4 the combined capacity of the two plants will be nine hundred (900) barrels every day. The oil when ready for the market, will bring close to $4 per barrel. Now figure for yourself. Remember, we will have our own production, over our own pipe lines, delivered to the people of the West in our own tank cars and tank wagons—now is this not a practical lineup for success? Don't you think you'd better secure some of the stock of this growing enterprise by sending your remittances at once before the stock is all taken?

At the Big Towns in Kansas and at St. Joe, Mo., Distributing Stations Already Completed.

The Uncle Sam company has large storage tanks for refined oil, with warehouses built, and from one to three tank wagons daily delivering oil to our large and growing trade in

Topeka, Kas.	Mineral, Kas.
Wichita, Kas.	Leavenworth, Kas.
Concordia, Kas.	Atchison, Kas.
Anthony, Kas.	Ottawa, Kas.
Winfield, Kas.	Lawrence, Kas.
Wellington, Kas.	Salina, Kas.
Hutchinson, Kas.	Kansas City, Kas.
Pittsburg, Kas.	St. Joseph, Mo.

While at several other places heavy shipments are being made to individual customers, especially to Joplin, and Springfield, Mo.

Fifty More Stations Will Be Installed During the Next Sixty Days.

Large base distributing stations will be installed at Omaha, Council Bluffs, Sioux City, Nebraska City, Jefferson City, St. Louis and East St. Louis, while from 40 to 45 railroad towns consisting of the best trade centres in Kansas, Oklahoma and Missouri will be established. This company will do just what it started out to do—namely, secure and maintain in time the oil trade of the Missouri valley states. If you wish to do your part to break the grip of the oil trust on the oil fields of Kansas and the Indian Territory, better join our band today and help this, the only formidable foe to oil trust oppression west of the Allegheny mountains, on to greater success.

Can Market Oil Just as Economical as the Trust.

The public in general are tired of the unjust methods of the trust and ready and willing to loyally support the first independent enterprise able to supply them. The sales department of the Uncle Sam Company is well organized and can just as easily in proportion sell ten times the company's present output as what they are now doing. The company has stockholders in nearly every good-sized town in Kansas, Oklahoma and Missouri, and we have found from experience that even one stockholder in a locality is a power for the advancement of the sales of Uncle Sam oil. Consider from every standpoint and you will find bulwarks of success surrounding this company and you can expect increased values for your investments and dividends on your money just as sure as you are a foot high if you invest in this stock.

Should Build Up to Eighteen Thousand Barrels per Day.

Uncle Sam will have a daily capacity of (2,700) twenty-seven hundred barrels per day not later than September and will continue to increase and there is not one single sane reason why in two or three years Uncle Sam cannot build up to (18,000) eighteen thousand barrels per day. Bear in mind that both refinery No. 2 at Atchison and refinery No. 3 at Tulsa are both being built so that in 60 days' time after July they can both be doubled up to (1,200) twelve hundred barrels and with Cherryvale added make (2,700) twenty-seven hundred barrels in all by some time in September.

With Main Pipe Line Completed the Freight Saving Alone Will Be Close to $2,700 Daily.

Barring the great profit to be made in the refining of crude oil, however, over the main trunk pipe line and river barges alone, when completed, there will be an actual saving over freight rates of nearly $1.00 per barrel, or close to $2,700 daily. Give the Uncle Sam credit for one-half of what it figures in sight and you will have to admit that we offer the public a square deal of an investment, one that certain returns are right in your plain view. Better follow the example of scores of others and take 1,000 shares at $200, or $5,000 shares at $1,000, immediately.

People Have Confidence in This Great Company.

It is only a question of a few weeks until a MILLION DOLLARS cash and TEN THOUSAND shareholders will be back of Uncle Sam. Thousands of stock holders are securing their funds to invest in the stock, while by the hundreds they are doubling up their holdings. Uncle Sam is putting up a square conservative fight for success and is winning almost phenomenal success right in the face of the greatest criminal combine the world has ever known. Uncle Sam has the friendship of nine-tenths of the influential newspapers of the United States and Canada, while the sentiment of the Missouri valley is with us almost to a man. It was forced into existence on account of certain large independent producing oil companies in the Cherryvale field being boycotted and blacklisted by the criminal trust. It is manned by Kansans, who are working with might and main to build up an enterprise strong enough to take care of every home oil field and those of our neighbors in Kansas and Indian Territory. Uncle Sam has pulled from the word go for deep water and unflinchingly has been able to expose many a dirty trick of the aggressor trust and will continue the fight for a square deal until any man of enterprise can engage in the honorable business of marketing and refining oil without being crushed or driven out of Kansas by well known oil trust operators whose hirelings are just now trying for steal temporary control of part of the Kansas government through a gang of blackmailing press agents and a few bribed newspapers which you can easily mark by their tirade on Uncle Sam, which is their disgust they are unable to detain for one minute in our onward march to greater success.

Telegrams Pouring In for Stock.

During the past [illegible] days one telegram from Philadelph[illegible] reserved ten thousand shares at $2,000, says remittance on the way"; another from Butte, Mont., reserved 5,000 shares with $1,000 already mailed. Two from Utah, one for $1,000 and one for $500 coming. One from Cincinnati, Ohio, says hold 5,000 shares, $1,000 draft sent. Another comes from Northern New York, says $1,000 sent for 5,000 shares, while a message from Florida reserved 3,000 shares with $650 on the way. We could tell you about a score of other messages for from $50 to $200, but if you delay your remittange you will find that additional orders by wire and letter will have secured all the balance of the stock. You are solicited to join us now, and your money will help us buy more pipe line and build just that much stronger this great company which the oil trust and its perjured hirelings will be unable to check until Uncle Sam will be so strong that we can give the trust a run for its money on Western soil, where right has always conquered and where oil thieves, like horse thieves, are certain to come to grief.

Why Increased Dividends Are Certain.

With the refining capacity increased on an average of ten times during the next six months it will be an easy matter for Uncle Sam to double up the second dividend. There is a market for at least 18,000 barrels of oil per day in the West. Do you suppose this company will be satisfied until it is up to 18,000 barrels daily? Suppose we make only $1.00 per barrel, while the trust now is making nearer $3.00, and you will realize that increased dividends are an assured fact.

Dividend Books Will Close in Less Than Ten Days.

Before a great many people read this announcement it will not be over a week until the dividend book will close. However, if you are not acquainted with the great work of the Uncle Sam Company you will have time to send for full particulars and then get your remittance in the mail by midnight Wednesday, June 20, 1906, positively the last hour that subscribers for stock can buy stock and secure the first dividend, which will be mailed to every stockholder between June 20 and July 20, 1906. Just as well get a move on yourself now and get in at once for you can just as well secure the first dividend by acting promptly.

A Million and a Half Dollar Producing Property Back of Uncle Sam.

About three miles southwest of where pumping station No. 1 of Uncle Sam's main trunk pipe line is 1,140-acre lot 43, Osage, that is conceded by conservative oil men to be one of the most valuable oil properties in the Indian country. Uncle Sam has just completed on this great property oilers Nos. 12 and 14, and drillers are now working on Nos. 15 and 16. The company is now drilling out in the centre of the property, nearly one mile and a half from where oil was first discovered on the east line. Enough locations have already been proved to leave room for seventy more oil wells, while the pay oil sand is increasing as the drills move west and north. The largest oil wells in the Indian Territory are almost certain to be found in nearby locations, if not the main pool, in which event you would see this stock advance to several times even $1 per share. Uncle Sam is doing things. Assets back of this stock are increasing even while you sleep. The drills work night and day, and it is just a question of a few months until this property will be developed until it will be worth over a million and a half dollars to Uncle Sam stockholders, for every barrel of this oil when run through the Uncle Sam refinery will bring Uncle Sam stockholders close to $4 per barrel.

Over 28,000 Acres of Other Oil Rights.

In addition to the before named valuable eleven hundred-acre lot 43, the Uncle Sam company holds leases on oil rights on nearly twenty-eight (28,000) acres in Labette, Montgomery, Elk and Chautauqua counties, some of which is very good property and any of which may develop good producers.

Control Nearly 4,000 Acres More, Including Seventy-four Oilers.

In addition to the before mentioned oil properties Uncle Sam Company controls the output of several good fields including 74 oil wells, six pumping plants and nearly 4,000 additional oil rights. Besides owning outright six gas wells—one that is good for over five million feet daily. There are assets back of this stock on every hand, and they will continually increase and make the stock you buy more valuable.

Rushing Shipments for Tulsa Refinery Uncle Sam No. 3.

In the heart of the Indian Territory oil fields nearly 300 miles from the big river refinery you will find the Uncle Sam Big Dying on the banks of the Arkansas by the Tulsa, where by July 1 nearly all of the material will be on the grounds or shipped for Uncle Sam refinery No. 3. From this plant Uncle Sam will reach the trade of Indian Territory and Oklahoma and Western Arkansas and Northern Texas. This refinery, like the big river refinery, is being built so it can be enlarged to TEN THOUSAND barrels per day, and in time a very large refined oil pipe line will be built down the Arkansas river to Fort Smith, Ark., where light barges will be loaded for Little Rock and other Arkansas cities and on down the river to the Southern coasts. You should join the Uncle Sam Company today and let your investment grow with it. $50 to $200, although a small amount now, may grow into a good investment for you with this growing enterprise.

Now or Never—Your Last Chance—Remittances Breaking All Records.

It matters not whether you live in Old Mexico, Canada, on the New England coast or Florida or Oregon, you can secure stock in this Uncle Sam Company, and depend on a fair treatment and dividends on your money. However, the curtain is about ready to ring down on the last act—for there are thousands who have been about ready to invest who are going to act before they lose the first dividend. This will mean that remittances for stock for the next few days will go far beyond what some people expect. Consider, if you please, what they have been for the past two weeks: Total net sales of over ($70,000) Seventy Thousand dollars. Where is there an enterprise in the United States building so rapidly where you can invest with the safety of this one? Another fact not to be forgotten about these remittances is that they are coming from the people. One day this last week twenty (20) different investors took 1,000 shares each at $200 and this 20 represented eleven different states; so you can see that the buying is general, and that means that Uncle Sam has satisfied the rigid investigations of the many, and during the next week and a half you can expect the biggest part of the balance of Uncle Sam stock sold. The company is not trying to spring the price, but is giving you value received, realizing it can take the proceeds from the sale of this stock and build Uncle Sam where it will stand second to none in supremacy and thereby force a square deal in the Western oil fields.

Big Steamer Will Navigate the Missouri at Atchison July 4.

For years the railroads and the oil trust working together have tried to discourage and kill all water transportation, but the business men of the Missouri valley are waking up and it will be just a question of time until the great Uncle Sam river refinery will be the centre of navigation on the Missouri. Come to Atchison and see for yourself July 4, and also see the great river plant which the oil trust knockers said Uncle Sam would never build. However, would advise you to secure your stock at once.

Five Thousand Domestic Fuel Burners Soon Ready for Delivery.

For the past six months Uncle Sam men have been hard at work on a fuel oil burner for cook stoves and heaters. There is a market in Kansas for nearly two hundred thousand barrels of fuel oil monthly with this burner, and Uncle Sam has started out to put in SIXTY THOUSAND of these burners by early fall and will come pretty near doing it too. Will soon have five thousand ready for immediate delivery.

More Tank Cars Secured.

Uncle Sam has secured option on ten more tank cars with which to haul oil from the north end of the completed pipe line to Atchison refinery and then to haul fuel oil in latter to Western and Central Kansas.

Remittances Week Ending June 9, 1906, Total $29,000.

Coming from every corner of the United States—maintaining a steady daily average from $3,000 up to as high as $6,000 daily. Uncle Sam has banked during the week just ended $29,000. With this kind of a record before investors that will have a bullish effect and cause hundreds to invest in the stock who were a little timid. For the stock cannot help but advance greatly as quick as the balance is sold and the work completed.

Write or Wire for Particulars and Pictures.

This company has just what it advertises. In the different departments, at the refinery, on the pipe line, in the oil fields and at the different distributing stations over one hundred men are crowding the great work of the company on to success. We have about eighty pictures taken from real life in the different departments showing part of the great work; also more complete reports. We will be glad to mail them to any investor in the United States or any foreign country, and any other information desired. We stand ready to prove any statement made herein and solicit your investment in this stock in good faith and will see that you get a square deal in fact as well as words. The company will not sell over thirty thousand shares to any one man, and reserves the right to reject any offer by returning the remittance. Would rather have five men subscribe $200 each than one man $1,000, for this company is a common man's organization and wants as large a number of stockholders among the middle class as possible.

ANNUAL MEETING OF W. C. T. U. OF B. C.

Proceedings at the First Day's Session Held at New Westminster.

In Queen's Avenue Methodist church, New Westminster, Tuesday afternoon, the Provincial W. C. T. U. held the opening services of its 23rd annual meeting. "How Firm a Foundation," was the opening hymn, which was followed by the 127 Psalm read responsively, and prayer by Mrs. McNaughton of Victoria.

Rev. W. Barraclough preached the convention sermon from the words: "They Shall Call His Name Emmanuel God With Us." The theme of which was a call to renewed, determined and consecrated effort along the many lines of W. C. T. U. work for humanity. The workers today must not be pessimistic chewing life from the point of "a day between two nights," but rather as the optimist who sees life's burdens as "the night between two days."

The absence of the president, Mrs. M. J. Brown, owing to recent bereavement, is much regretted and upon Mrs. M. A. Cunningham, cor.-sec., has fallen the duties of presiding over the deliberations of the convention.

The officers present are: Mrs. M. A. Cunningham, New Westminster, cor.-sec.; Mrs. B. Andrews, Victoria, rec.-sec.; Mrs. Gordon Grant, Victoria, treasurer. Vice-presidents, Mrs. Van Lou, New Westminster, Mrs. McNaughton, Victoria; Mrs. Watson, Vancouver; Mrs. Matheson, Langley Prairie.

In addition forty delegates are in attendance.

Much encouragement has been given by the largely increased work during the past year, which, owing to change in the date of convention covers nine months only. Eleven new unions have been organized, two of which are in the interior towns, and were organized by Mrs. Spofford who has the last three months in the work and the membership increased by about 200. The financial standing of the society is also excellent. The total receipts being $3,928.27.

A bright and attractive programme was arranged for the first evening. The choir of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church rendered delightful and inspiring music, and hearty greetings were given from the Royal City by the mayor, from the Ministerial association by Rev. Mr. Henderson; from the Local Council of Women by Mrs. Levar, and from the Entertaining Union by Mrs. Van Lou. The greeting of the latter being conveyed through an original poem.

Mrs. Gordon Grant responded to these in her usually bright and happy manner.

The address of the evening was given by Rev. Mr. Pescott, of Vancouver, who undoubtedly is one of the foremost advocates of temperance in the province, and one of its most eloquent speakers. Probably the most interesting feature of the many good things on Wednesday's programme, was the report of the organization work which has been done by Mrs. Spofford, who, since the beginning of March has been going through the interior in the interest of the work. A summary of this work shows every town with a population of over 200 well worked in the interest of W. C. T. U., twenty-one in all, in only four of which was any work being done. During the trip 2,600 miles have been covered, 336 women personally visited on behalf of the work, 48 meetings held, 108 letters written. Unions organized in the following places: Enderby, Vernon, Kelowna, Summerland, Penticton, Grand Forks, Rossland, Fernie, Coal Creek and Kamloops, with 200 active and 74 honorary members. A district convention was held at Kelowna June 5th and 6th, at which 31 delegates were in attendance from the six unions in the Okanagan Valley.

LAURENCE-GILLESPIE.

A Pretty Wedding Which Occurred at Penticton on Friday Last.

On Friday 15th inst., a quiet wedding took place at Myrtle Grove ranch, Penticton, the residence of Mr. and Mrs. D. Gillespie, so well known throughout the district, when Arthur Basil Laurence and their daughter, Miss Christina Gillespie were joined together in the holy bonds of matrimony by Rev. T. Greene M. A., of Kelowna.

The wedding was fixed for 5 o'clock, the bride being given away by her father, and Miss Ethel Gillespie acting as bridesmaid.

The bride looked charming in a white satin dress trimmed with white lace and ribbon, with silk veil and orange blossoms, the bridesmaid's dress being of white silk trimmed with white lace and ribbon. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Waterman, Miss and Mr. F. Bassett, Miss McKenzie and Mr. P. McIntyre, Mr. A. H. Wade, Miss and Mr. T. Prather, Mr. M. C. Kendall, Mr. Y. C. Kittey, Mr. W. Arnott, Mr. G. Todd-Naylor, Mr. Oscar Bunce and others.

After the ceremony the guests all sat down to partake of Mr. Gillespie's hospitality. Mr. A. H. Wade proposing the health of the bride and bridegroom. This was followed by toasts of "the ladies," responded to in an able speech by Mr. Warwick Arnott, Mr. and Mrs. Gillespie, etc.

Rev. T. Greene in a few well chosen words, merely expressed the opinion of the company in saying that he thought Mr. Laurence a very lucky man, and after a delay caused by the rain, the happy couple started for Penticton amidst the good wishes of all present, en route for England, where they will spend their honeymoon.

The presents were: bride to bridegroom, silver-mounted ebony brushes; bridegroom to bride, pearl brooch; bridegroom to bridesmaid, set of waistpins; bridegroom to best man, pearl pin; Mr. D. Gillespie, check; Mrs. D. Gillespie, cut glass set and drawing room furniture; Misses Ethel and Nellie Gillespie, sisters of the bride, clock and silver cake dish; Mr. Willie Gillespie, brother of the bride, gold watch and writing set; Mr. Walter Gillespie, biscuit box; Mrs. Malcolm Gillespie, silver dessert spoon; Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Gillespie, and Mrs. Cooke, silver spoons; Mr. and Mrs. Ross Gillespie, silver tray; Mr. and Mrs. Archie Gillespie, £5 gold piece; Misses Mabel and Laura Gillespie, cold meat fork; Mrs. Laurence, check; Miss Laurence, check; Miss L. C. Laurence, check; Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Laurence, silverware; Dr. and Mrs. B. E. Laurence, silverware; Mr. and Mrs. Waterman, sugar sifter; Miss Bassett, table napkins; Mrs. and Miss McKenzie, gold safety pin; Dr. and Mrs. Dunbar, silver sugar spoon; Mr. and Miss Prather, napkin rings; Mr. and Mrs. James Patterson, silver teaspoons; Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Schubert, picture; Mr. A. H. Wade, check; Mr. F. Bassett, eiderdown quilt; Mr. R. Bassett, flower vases; Mr. A. H. Hoole, checks; Mr. M. C. Kendall, pictures and table cloths; Mr. T. Bassett, lemonade set; Messrs. W. Arnott and G. Todd-Naylor, silver buttons; Mr. Oscar Bunce, gold bracelet; Rev. T. Greene, preserved fruit jar; Mr. Y. C. Kittey, toilet set.

THE HIGH SHOULDERED MAN.

Type B

High Shouldered Variation

The high shouldered man is usually the strong man!

His forbears—were probably of prodigious strength—accustomed to terrific muscular exertion that made the shoulder bones bigger and the muscles more than ordinarialy developed..

The physical likeness carried from one generation to another is marked in certain generations—we meet this type quite frequently.

By each degree of inch of alteration—the type is known—thus if ¼ inch has to be taken off, the type is known as ¼ high shouldered.

For the high shouldered man we require the following alterations.

The backs and fronts are shortened the required amount and the arm hole remains the same.

We tailor all Semi-ready suits to physiques. Since we have each seam made with outlets, it takes only two hours to make your suit fit as required when trying on! Money back if there's the least dissatisfaction!

THE LATE BISHOP BOMPAS

In referring to the death of the great and good man Bishop Bompas, it was stated in these columns, as the highest tribute to his memory, that he had lived his life for others. It is seldom that the religious work of one who pursued an isolated career among native tribes, and was practically buried from civilization for 40 years, is recognized throughout Canada, and, indeed, far beyond its limits. The press everywhere has dealt with his life and character in a manner that must be encouraging to others who are following his example, encouraging not so much as the plaudits of the press are concerned but because it shows that the ideals of men are not completely framed after those of Mammon, and that the world still appreciates and honors the moral hero. It is a sign that there are yet many in the community who are not given over to ambition for fame or wealth. There are few, however, actuated as Bishop Bompas was. He was a remarkable man in more respects than one, and deserves to be ranked with the church's most heroic figures and as one of its greatest missionaries. The Toronto News has a very appreciative editorial, which will bear repeating as a just tribute to a man whose memory deserves to be long honored:

An English clergyman and scholar, he came out to Canada in 1865, and was made Bishop of Athabasca in 1874. This diocese stretched from Athabasca Landing, one hundred miles north of Edmonton, to the Arctic ocean, and included what is now known as the Yukon. This immense empire was twice divided, and it would be supposed that the old missionary would take the southernmost part, and send the younger men into the north, but instead of that in 1882 he took the northern part, known from the great river that runs through it as the diocese of Maskenzie, and, again, in 1901, when this was subdivided, he took the part about the Arctic ocean and the Yukon, which was called, after the founder of the Red River settlement, the diocese of Selkirk. Long before the civilized world ever heard of the Klondike Bishop Bompas and his faithful assistants walked over that district on snowshoes, and paddled through it in canoes.

Though he lived as missionary and bishop for forty years outside of civilization, he kept up his studies to the end, and, though he had mastered and translated books into several Indian tongues, he was at the time of his death one of the finest Syriac scholars in Canada, and a writer of religious hymns and poems. Throughout most of this long period Bishop Bompas had the support and assistance of his devoted wife, who was as great a missionary as himself, and who, when he retired in 1905, and Bishop Stringer was elected successor, went back with him gladly, even enthusiastically, to help him occupy one of the posts in the Yukon as a simple missionary. Disregarding the fact that they might have lived in comfort within the bounds of civilization for the remainder of their days, they went back to a log house and the rigors of a sub-Arctic winter in the Klondike country.

In an age, concludes the News, when the world is doing its best to inculcate the doctrine that a man dies dishonored who does not die rich, the life of a man like Bishop Bompas is a strong moral tonic; it is as a sea breeze blowing away the miasmas of the swamps, and when it comes to be written there will be no better book to put in the hands of young Canadians of all denominations than the life of the Apostle of the North.

SYSTEMATIC FAKING

The publication of certain rumors about the supposed attitude of the Lieutenant Governor towards the chief commissioner of lands and works, took place on Monday last. As we surmised, the appearance of the "rumors" in the press of Victoria was part of a scheme for general publicity. We find in the Nelson News, of Sunday, one day previous, a despatch containing the same particulars in a slightly altered form, and it will have been circulated in the eastern papers about the same time. The despatch in the News is, if anything, more circumstantial than the local announcement, but the terms are more or less identical, indicating a very close relation between the sender of the one and the writer of the other.

To show the skill which is employed in faking these despatches, which, needless to say, are paid for so much per inch, we quote the last few paragraphs:

"The government request for investigation by a supreme court judge of charges in connection with the Pendray property is believed to be due to the desire of the premier to rehabilitate his minister with whom he will part only if retention means loss of power.

"The Pendray case will be a difficult one to establish by witnesses and hence the premier hopes to be able to fight it successfully, and by a favorable decision from the judge to prove the department clean.

"Dunsmuir, however, is very obstinate, and if he has decided that Green must go he will insist on his wish being obeyed."

It will be observed that the impression sought to be conveyed here is, without a direct asservation, that the Lieutenant Governor was obstinately opposed to the retention of Mr. Green in the cabinet, whereas, as we have stated on a previous occasion, members of the government deny that any suggestion has come from His Honor with reference to the matter in any form whatsoever. We have the very best reason for stating that the whole story is the production of the imagination on the part of a combination of political and journalistic fakirs.

The best proof of what has happened will be in what will happen, and the public is requested to observe closely the progress of events affecting the political situation in question.

PART OF THE GAME

The St. John Sun, though now Liberal, has not yet forgotten some of its past traditions of being fair to an opponent. While taking the position that it would have been wiser for Mr. Foster to have overlooked the offence of Mr. Cinq Mars in libelling him in the eyes of the French Canadians through the columns of La Presse, nevertheless says "that newspaper writer grossly misrepresented him," and that the article complained of was "altogether unjust and untruthful." Notwithstanding that baseless slander is admitted in the charges of Cinq Mars against Hon. Geo. Foster, the Liberal members in the House of Commons applauded them as they were read out in parliament, thereby affording the strongest encouragement in the course he was pursuing. He had charged Mr. Foster with casting slurs and calumny "into the face of the inhabitants of the province of Quebec, of French Canadians, in fine, of everything and everybody who is respectable and ought to be respected," and accused him of continually representing "our compatriots as fools steeped in ignorance, our clergy as a collection of fanatics and hypocrites." In other words, the party gave official approval to the methods of slander as a legitimate form of campaigning against political opponents—such as has been exhibited in the columns of the Liberal press in this province in the case of the provincial government. The press is encouraged in the most emphatic way possible to lie and to slander. The more audacious and false the better to suit the purposes of the politicians. In a condition of political degeneracy such as exists at Ottawa, it is necessary to have such creatures in the press to defend the acts of the government as well as to attack their opponents. The symptoms, however, are not hopeful as to the future of either journalism or politics in this country.

INJUDICIOUS, BUT HUMAN

The young queen of Spain, who by the way, has taken the name of "Victoria," sent a message in reply to a telegram of congratulations from this country, in which she used the words "the loyal people of Canada." Of course, this was a breach of official etiquette on the part of the young queen, but one which is possibly as pleasing to the people of Canada as it was distasteful to her Spanish subjects. Young Queen Victoria has not yet got used to her surroundings, and was thinking as an Englishwoman and not as a Spanish queen when she wired. She forgot that she could not any longer refer to Canadians as her own people, although she might feel for them the same warm regard as ever. However, her slip may be easily forgiven even by the Spanish people, for she is yet a girl and there is nothing so natural as to speak of our own flesh and blood as we think of them. By and by, experience and the formalities of court life will correct this tendency for which she has been so severely censured. At the same time the compliment to Canada will be appreciated all the more,

PAY OF POST OFFICE EMPLOYEES

A deputation of post office employees waited on Sir Wilfrid Laurier a few days ago and asked for an increase of pay. They pointed out that, although the cost of living had materially increased the salaries paid to many of them remained the same. It is reported that Sir Wilfrid stated to them that he was not aware that such a state of affairs existed. This may be the case, but it is curious that the grievance of the post office employees has been aired in public for years, and that there have been bitter complaints about the harsh treatment received at the hands of Sir William Mulock, and he should not have known of these things. The post office employees are the hardest worked of all the civil service employees and their pay is the smallest. There is really no encouragement to good men to offer for employment in the department, which means slaving for practically seven days a week, and with little prospect of either promotion or increase in pay. It is true that the number of employees makes it difficult to keep the expenses of the department within the revenue, but the post office authorities at Ottawa will be excused if they cannot show a surplus provided that they show a better treated and better paid lot of officials. Canadians do not want a surplus at their expense.

LATE SIR HECTOR LANGEVIN.

Now that Sir Hector Langevin has passed away the Liberal newspapers are dealing with him in a spirit of appreciation. In regard to the dark chapter of his life, which cast a shadow over his political career and his declining years, he is represented as having been more sinned against than sinning. In the Langevin-McGreevy scandal, which marked the beginning of the downfall of the Conservatives, he is credited with having taken upon his own shoulders the sins of others and of having borne the load silently. That he was a great worker and organizer, and a master of departmental detail, is admitted and his part in the movement for Confederation is gratefully remembered in his behalf. He was even a greater force than Cartier in bringing about the union, so far as Quebec is concerned. As a manager he did far more effective work in his own silent way than his then leader, who was forceful, but volatile and impatient, and often aroused opposition where his successor smoothed the way and avoided friction and irritation. It is wholly probable that history will deal kindly and lightly with the episode of 1891 in determining Sir Hector's place as a statesman.

BUSINESS AND POPULARITY

Complaints have been made—in fact there has been a serious agitation in Northern Ontario—against the charges on the Temiskaming railway. As this line of railway belongs to and is operated by the government it is peculiarly open to criticism. It has been charged that the rates of passenger and freight traffic are excessive, and that the officials are arrogant with the settlers. The rates are the same as those charged by the Grand Trunk and the C. P. R. The rules and regulations are also about the same as those in force on other lines. The settlers may have the example of the Intercolonial before them and imagine that it should not be run on business lines. Mr. C. B. Smith, chairman of the commission, in replying to the criticisms made, says:

"I do not see that there can be any cause for such complaint, unless it results from the somewhat general impression that government owned railways should carry everything free."

The trouble seems to be that the Whitney government will not show favors and it has had the effect of giving some of the Conservatives in that new country cold chills to think there is no business advantages to be had by being a supporter of the government. They have not realized yet that the railway was built as a business proposition for the whole people, and not for political favorites. A minister in charge of a department having extensive relations with the public is likely to earn the dislike of politicians if he hews straight to the line. A man is not always popular with his own party who refuses to be influenced by political considerations in dealing with public trusts. Unpopularity is often a certificate of merit.

This is strictly on the "square." There is a large number of Ancient, Free and Accepted Masons in Victoria, to whom are extended all the ancient liberties of the city.

Hon. Mr. Emmerson, minister of railways, is experiencing quite a boom because it is announced that the Intercolonial will pay expenses this year. In a time of plenty like this, it ought not to be wonderful that a railway can be made to pay.

The Vancouver World as by an instinct of self-reproach, in an article entitled "An Epoch of Slander," quotes from an address of Chancellor Day on sensationalism in public affairs as follows: "The people should awaken to the danger which threatens representative government. We have fallen into a scandal mongering epoch. The foul harpies of scandal have created a condition and all of the civilized world is nauseated at the thought of us."

If the present Bryan boom keeps up it is sixteen to one that he will be the next president of the United States.

It now transpires that there were high jinks on the Arctic, which may account for the using up of so much supplies. Parties of Esquimaux were entertained on board during the winter, and some of the Esquimaux women even appeared in high society with fashionable hats. The natives danced on the decks for the edification of the isolated, suffering crew.

An up-country paper is puzzled over the attitude of the Liberal papers that are so anxious to have the fullest statements regarding the transactions of the lands and works office in British Columbia and are so fearful about the investigations at Ottawa. They are quite willing to defend the government at the latter place for refusing information in the North Atlantic Trading Company affairs, but terribly insistent regarding an investigation in Victoria.

The charges made against a new High School geography in Ontario by certain high clerics that it leans to infidelity, because it contains expositions of the nebular hypothesis, originated by Kant and Sir William Hamilton, and developed by Le Place and others, and of the Darwinian theory of evolution, might cause us to enquire if the "world do really move." We are afraid if the church has to stand on a foundation of antagonism to the modern teachings of science, it would be somewhat insecure. Fortunately Bishop Sweatman does not reflect the best intelligence of the church to which he belongs.

MOONEY'S CAR LINE.

First Canadian Manufacturers to Adopt a System of Private Freight Cars.

It takes a lot of confidence in one's success, and an abiding faith in future prosperity, to invest the money necessary to equip a line of private freight cars in connection with one's business. Yet that is just what the Mooney Biscuit and Candy Company, Limited, of Stratford, Ontario, have done.

Even in the United States, only a few of the largest concerns own and operate their own cars, so that it speaks volumes for the Mooney company, who have been in business only three years.

The new cars are of the standard size, weighing 36,000 pounds and having a capacity of 60,000 pounds, (30 tons.) They are painted a rich cream color. On each side of the doors is the familiar blue and purple of "Mooney's Perfection Cream Sodas."

The Mooney Company is the only concern in Canada owning and operating their own freight cars—and their business has so increased in three years that they have been compelled to double the size of their premises.

The first private car of the Mooney company to be loaded, left the bakery at Stratford for Edmonton last week, over the Canadian Northern railway, and will doubtless attract much attention enroute and on its arrival at its destination.

MUSIC CABINETS

In the well-ordered Drawing or Music Room, a MUSIC CABINET is an essential item. It keeps the music clean and tidy---ready for instant use. The arrangement of shelves permits of classification---you have no necessity to turn over fifty or sixty songs to find the Waltz you are looking for. The MUSIC CABINETS we stock are very handsome pieces of furniture; they take up very little room, and cost very little money. Below, we list a few of our leading MUSIC CABINETS:

GOLDEN OAK, quarter cut, open front, 6 useful shelves ..... $ 8.00
IN MAHOGANY, same as above 8.00
MAHOGANY, fitted with 6 shelves and door; one shelf is very deep for bound works 12.00
MAHOGANY, fitted with carved door and seven shelves; one for bound works; a very chaste design.. 12.50
FINE GOLDEN OAK, quarter cut, with door, six shelves and top drawer; also has bevelled edge mirror at top 15.00
RICH MAHOGANY, Chiffendale finish, carved door, moveable shelves and useful top drawer 20.00
RICH MAHOGANY, with six moveable trays and space for bound works; door is handsomely carved. This is a very choice piece of furniture 30.00
VERY FINE GRAINED MAHOGANY, with five drawers, for piece music; large cupboard, with double doors for bound works; top drawer for loose photos; an extremely fine music cabinet 35.00

PIANO DRAPES

The old day when one covered the top of a fine piano with a hideous combination of blue, yellow and black has passed away. In its place we use the softest and most artistic cold harmonies in rich Nepaulese Silks, fine French Brocades, or Impression-de-Chine, for draping the BACKS of pianos when drawn out into the room. The Impression-de-Chine is a charming new fabric for this and other decorative purposes.

Local News

Amherst school shoes have double tips.

A strawberry festival will be held this evening in St. Mark's schoolroom, Cloverdale, at 8 p. m. An excellent programme will be provided.

Flowers in Position.—Yesterday morning the window boxes in front of the Development and Tourist association's rooms were filled under authority from the executive, and the premises present a very neat appearance in consequence.

Court of Revision.—This morning at 10 o'clock the municipal court of revision will commence its sessions in the city hall. As there are very few appeals from assessment it is probable the revision will be completed in one day.

Cheap Fares Offered.—All railways in the Kootenay have duplicated the cheap fare offered by coast roads for teachers attending the convention to be held in this city next week. Stop over privileges are allowed for thirty days, which will ensure a large attendance at the meetings of the provincial institute.

Automobile Club.—The Victoria Automobile club will shortly hold a meeting to discuss an agitation for reduced rates from the Sound. Members do not think it right that inducements of this kind are offered for excursions to Nanaimo without equal facilities being afforded visitors to Victoria.

Summer Vacation.—Tomorrow the majority of the schools throughout the province will close their doors for the summer vacation. It has been announced that the teachers desiring to attend the annual convention of the Teachers' Institute, which takes place in this city during the last week of the present month, may dismiss their classes seven days earlier than is usually permitted, in other words on the date mentioned.

Presbyterian Picnic.—It is anticipated that the United Presbyterian Sunday school picnic will this year eclipse all former outings, and given fine weather a most enjoyable day will be spent. It has been decided to hold the picnic at Goldstream, and a more ideal spot could not have been chosen. An energetic committee is now preparing a programme of sports and games, and an excellent train service has been arranged, the trains leaving the E. & N. depot at 8 a. m. and 10 a. m. and 1 p. m., and returning from Goldstream at 5 p. m., 7.27 p. m. and 8:30 p. m.

Entrance Exams.—At the High school yesterday the entrance examination commenced under the personal supervision of Superintendent of Schools F. H. Eaton. It is expected to last three days, the final paper being disposed of on Friday afternoon. No less than one hundred and fifteen candidates presented themselves when the class was called together this forenoon. All the city schools sent a contingent of pupils anxious to try for the certificate entitling them to start on the second stage of their education at Victoria college. They were pretty evenly divided: the South Park, Central and North Ward schools, of course, contributing the larger numbers, while about thirty additional were sent from outside points —Cedar Hill, Esquimalt and other districts not included in the Victoria city school district. This is a record number. It is larger than has ever before been the case, and, if the usual proportion are successful, may mean a slight congestion in the accommodation of the High school.

Dr. George H. Duncan has removed his offices from 79 Fort street to rooms 20 to 26 in the Five Sisters' block near the corner of Government and Fort, facing the latter.

Also telephone to Ladners.

Presented to King.—The London Morning Post in its issue of Tuesday, May 24th, prints a list of presentations at the King's levee held at St. James Palace on the day previous. The list contains the following mention: "Martin, the Hon. Mr. Justice, by the Viscount Althorp."

Enquiry for Land.—A resident of South Saanich yesterday informed a Colonist reporter that during recent weeks there has been a marked demand for property in the district mentioned, most of the inquiries coming from parties in Manitoba and the Northwest.

Building Progress.—D. H. Bale has been awarded a contract for the building of a bungalow residence for Mr. C. K. Magill at Shawnigan lake. Work will be commenced almost immediately.

Rose Show.—All preparations have been completed looking to the success of the first annual rose show to be held under the auspices of the Victoria Horticultural society tomorrow. The prize list has already appeared in the Colonist.

Citizens' League.—On Friday evening, June 29th, the general meeting of the Victoria Citizens' League will take place at 8 o'clock at the W. C. T. U. rooms, Yates street. Representatives are all earnestly requested to make an effort to be present.

Married in Vancouver.—At Vancouver on Monday, Mr. D. Bruce Findley, of Victoria, was married to Miss May Clark, of that city, the ceremony being performed by Rev. W. E. Pescott, B. A., of the Wesley Methodist church. The happy couple have arrived in Victoria, where they will make their home. Mr. Findley, who was formerly a resident of Vancouver, occupied a prominent position in lacrosse circles there.

The Dockyard Vacancy.—A large number of local Liberal patriots, are aspirants for the position of superintendent of the Esquimalt Graving dock rendered vacant by the death of the late Captain Devereux, and the Hon. William Templeman, Hon. Senator Riley and those who have in their care the distribution of patronage for Victoria constituency, find their ears tingling in consequence. Those who are applicants for the position are as far as known as follows: James Tagg; foreman for Messrs. Bullen & Co., at Esquimalt; J. Greaves, who was foreman at the dockyard under the late Capt. Devereux; Thos. C. Sorby, Elliott S. Rowe and C. H. Lugrin.

Construct Retaining Wall.—A concrete retaining wall will be constructed at the eastern end of Caledonia avenue in order to prevent the street end from falling into the sand pit. As will be remembered the question was brought before the council by the streets committee which recommended that some action be taken to prevent the owner of the property from encroaching on the street and recommended that a retaining wall should be constructed. The matter was referred to the city solicitor, and he has practically concluded arrangements whereby the owner will construct a wall of concrete to prevent a cave-in of the street end.

Council Business.—The city council will again miss the regular Thursday evening meeting. This has been decided on as the meeting of the court of revision which meets this morning will take up considerable time. Without exception all the aldermen are deeply interested in the many proposed water propositions and when the question eventually comes up for discussion they will be able to understand what is being talked about. Within the next few days Surveyor Devereux will journey to the district surrounding Sooke lake and will endeavor to locate a more feasible route than the one that has hitherto been considered. With the completion of the work in this section he will devote his attention to Highland district and it is expected that within the course of a few weeks the board will be in possession of all data concerning both systems.

Fourth of July.—The celebration of the Fourth of July at Port Angeles this year will eclipse all former efforts of this bustling little city. The committee in charge of the programme having left nothing undone that would in any way assist in the day's enjoyment. An invitation has been sent to the commanding officer of the Pacific squadron with a view of having several of Uncle Sam's battleships in port and it is confidently expected that the navy will be represented as in former years. A good programme of games and sports is being prepared with a baseball game in the afternoon while the day's enjoyment will close with a grand ball in the opera house in the evening. An excursion from this city has been arranged by the Princess May which boat is in every way an ideal one for the purpose, having recently been entirely overhauled and her speed materially increased. Those who have in former years suffered from mal de mere need have no fear of a like experience on this trip as the steamer is of sufficient size to overcome the unpleasant rolling motion. The steamer will leave the Belleville Street C. P. R. dock at 9:00 a. m., 2 and 7 p. m., and returning will leave Angeles at 11 a. m., 5 and 10 p. m. while the cheap rate of fifty cents for the round trip will be charged.

Benefit Concert.—Gratifying success is being met with by Mr. J. G. Brown in connection with the arrangements for the concert in aid of the widow and family of the late Mr. James Redford, of Alberni. Mr. Brown reports that not a single refusal was given when assistance was asked, and it speaks well for the local artists when such was the case. In little over two hours all arrangements were completed. The large lecture hall of the First Presbyterian church was secured through the kindness of the managers of the church, the following ladies and gentlemen have responded, and will assist in the programme: Mrs. Wm. Gregson, Mrs. G. J. Burnett, Mrs. D. C. Reid, Mrs. Gideon Hicks, Miss Underhill, Mrs. G. H. Larrigan, Mr. W. D. Kinnaim, Mr. W. M. Allan, Mr. W. D. Kinnaird, Mr. W. M. Allan, Mr. Hugh Kennedy, Mr. Jesse Longfield, Mr. Gideon Hicks, Professor Meyer, (pianist San Francisco), Mr. J. G. Brown. It is worthy of note that Prof. Meyer was a heavy loser in the earthquake and fire but despite his own financial ruin has come forward to aid in this worthy object. Tickets for the concert will be placed in the hands of a number of friends and in the stores, and it is hoped that everyone will at least purchase one ticket, the price has been placed at 50c, so as to be within the reach of all. The programme will be given in extenso later.

Dr. F. R. Humber, who has completed his course in dental surgery is now associated with Dr. A. A. Humber, Government street, over Redferns.

White Pass Changes.—Advices from Skagway, Alaska, state that Mr. S. A. Speddy, city ticket agent of the White Pass & Yukon route, and who is known as "Snowball" Speddy from Alaska to San Francisco has resigned his position with the White Pass company. Mr. Speddy will leave Skagway for Fairbanks, where he will go into business for himself. He has been connected with the railroad for the past five years and spent the winter in the States as their traveling passenger agent. Mr. G. W. Ross, of Tacoma, has succeeded Mr. Speddy as ticket agent at the Northern port.

Pulp Industry in British Columbia.—J. M. Mackinnon, managing director of the Canadian Pacific Sulphite Pulp company, has received word that the company has been successfully floated in England, and the shares gone to allotment says the Vancouver News-Advertiser. The capital is £107,000. This is the first pulp company to operate in British Columbia which has got under way. It is probable that one of the English directors of the company will be in Vancouver in connection with local operations, which will be gone ahead with immediately.

Accident To Stoker.—At Vancouver on Tuesday morning, James McCormick, a fireman on board the steamer Bucentaur, had his foot so badly crushed that it had to be amputated at the hospital. He, with some other of the men from the steamer went on shore on Monday evening, and remained all night. They were at the wharf Tuesday morning, unable to get out as the boat was in the stream. To while away the time, McCormick showed the rest of the boys how they did things in London, and boarded a flat car in the C. P. R. yard, which was being shunted. He tried to get off, but his foot caught in the iron step, and he was thrown on the rail. W. H. Debbs, one of those who was with him, is an old army ambulance man, and was prompt with first aid to the injured. He succeeded in stopping the flow of blood, and had the injured foot roughly dressed by the time the ambulance arrived. The doctors decided that amputation was necessary.

THE INSURRECTION IN KOREAN PROVINCES

Growing Resentment Because of Japanese Aggression the Cause.

The news telegraphed from Tokio of the extending revolution in Korea is not unexpected. Since the occupation of Korea after the treaty of Portsmouth was made there has been a growing feeling of resentment at Japanese actions, which on several occasions threatened to incite revolution. At the end of May a revolution was started in Chyong-Chun province, at first in a small way. Some three hundred insurgents rushed the walled town of Hongju, driving away the small Japanese garrison which defended the walls and approaches. Forces of Korean and Japanese troops were despatched against the insurgents, whose successes had caused a great increase in their ranks; but the Japanese force displaced the insurgents, defeating them with loss. The flame being put to the movement that would have been commenced before had not the Japanese strength been so evident, the patriots rose elsewhere and have now sacked the walled towns of Tamyeng and Sunchan, both important places in the southeastern province. It is a notable fact that it was in Chyong-Chun that the series of revolutions which ultimately led to the Chino-Japanese war and presaged the political conditions which resulted in the recent war, with Korea as part of the bone of contention, were commenced; and the movement was carried to the capital, where the Japanese legation was attacked and some of its members assassinated. The consul escaped and made his way to Chemuipo, where he secured passage for Japan and carried the news of the outbreak, which resulted in a strong force of Japanese troops being sent to return the consul. China, in whose suzerainty Korea was at the time, sent 4000 troops and crushed out the rebellion. In December, 1887, the Chinese and Japanese garrisons maintained since the emute of two years previous came to blows and the Japanese again had to escape from the country. Reparation was demanded from China and war seemed imminent, but a settlement was made and the convention of Tientsin (April 18, 1885) arranged that in the event of further rebellion in Korea both China and Japan were to send equal forces, both to be withdrawn simultaneously. For the next nine years there were incipient revolutions, chiefly in Chyong-Chun, and in the spring of 1894 a widespread revolution began in the southern provinces of Korea. The Korean army was unable to cope with the movement and appeal was made by the Korean Emperor to China, which country sent an armed force of 2,500 men disembarked in June at Asan. The Japanese, notified of the despatch of troops by China, and entitled to send a similar amount, sent more—the Japanese landed 8,000 men at Chemuipo and 200 at Fusan. The strong force put down the revolution, and after it had been quelled, Japan refused to withdraw her troops and invited China to co-operate in a reform of the Korean administration, which was much needed. China refused to recognize Japan's right to interfere, and the old question of suzerainty was revived, China meanwhile increasing her forces in Korea. Then Japan sent an ultimatum, and the war that followed is a matter of history. When the Treaty of Shimonoseki was made (April 17, 1895), this instrument arranged that Korea was nominally to be an independent state with sovereign rights, while Japan's influence and prestige were enhanced. From that time Korea became a hot bed of intrigue, Russian and Japanese continually manoeuvring for advantage. The first Anglo-Japanese treaty (Jan. 30, 1902) stipulated "the independence and territorial integrity of Korea," and agreed upon the joint protection of interests Japan possessed "in a peculiar degree, politically as well as commercially and industrially in Korea." The latest Anglo-Japan treaty (August 12, 1905) with regard to Korea fully and completely recognises in the clearest terms the paramount position occupied by Japan resulting to the Russo-Japanese war, and recognizes Japanese right to take "any measures which she may deem necessary for the protection of her political, military and economic interests in Korea. Then a treaty was made between Japan and Korea which, if carried out, would be beneficial rather than otherwise to Korea, but Japan has been unfortunate in its choice of officials in Korea until the tardy appointment of Marquis Ito as resident-general.

Grievance followed upon grievance, many of them sufficient to fire even the Korean with patriotic protest. Two of the Korean ministers, after the treaty was made—it is notorious in the Orient that it was secured not by diplomatic pressure, but by force majeur—took their lives, suiciding in protest. The seizure of farming lands, allegedly for military barracks, and the uprooting of crops for six miles of the richest soil of the valley outside Ping Yang, the practical absorption of every branch of the Korean government, and, above all, the silly overbearing manner assumed by the Japanese who migrated to the country, admittedly not the choicest of Japanese people, are but a few of the goading actions which threatened revolution, and that one has been commenced will surprise no one. That it will be futile is also evident, for there are two divisions of well trained Japanese troops in Korea, and a trunk railway line cuts the country with terminus, but twelve hours steaming from Japan. Many foreign writers hold that the actions of the Japanese were aimed at provoking revolution with the idea that the country may be seized in toto following the sending of troops to crush the revolution.

CREAMERY COMMANDMENTS

Some Fatherly Advice Extended of a Very Pertinent Character.

A Colonist reader forwards the following, clipped from an exchange, headed "The Creamery Man's Ten Commandments:

1. Thou shalt not slumber late in the morning, but shalt rise early and deliver thy cream to the factory, for he that goeth late causeth the buttermaker to use profane language.

2. Thou shalt not cast off all the dirt thou canst brush off the cow into the milk pail.

3. Thou shalt not take any cream for thy tea or coffee, for when thou gettest thy dividends one shall say to another, 'Why taketh it more milk here for a pound of butter than at any other creamery?' Then shalt the buttermaker arise and hold thee up to ridicule with the Babcock rotary test.

4. Thou shalt not mix water with thy cream, thou nor thy servant nor thy hired girl, for so surely as thou doeth this thing thy name shall be Dennis, over the length and breadth of the whole province.

5. Thou shalt not feed thy cows too much potatoes, onions, horseradish, mustard, or French weed, for these things though they may be as cheap as all outdoor, cause the buttermaker to gnash his teeth exceedingly, and the butter eater to buy his butter somewhere else.

6. Thou shalt not set thy can of night's cream in the cellar with the cover off in order to use it as a trap to catch rats and mice therein, neither in the woodshed as a temptation to thy neighbor's cat.

7. Thou shalt not carry away more cream than thy share, lest someone will say concerning thee: "For a wonder one hog carrieth food for another."

8. Thou shalt not use unclean cans, but shalt cause thy cans to be washed every day, for a filthy can is an abomination in the buttermaker's sight, and he will visit wrath upon him that sendeth it.

9. Thou shalt not trouble the buttermaker saying: "When shall I receive my pay?" for verily I say unto you, he knoweth not nor careth a little bit.

10. Thou shalt not say unto another, 'Lo, behold, have not these cream handlers a soft snap? They receive much pay and work not very hard at all.' Verily I say unto ou, this is a whopper. They rise early and toil much, and peradventure the board of directors refuseth to buy another separator, they will be obliged to toil Sunday morning, when other people are fanning themselves within the gates of the synagogue.

JERKING OF THE LIMBS.

"Before using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I could not sleep, had no appetite, hands and feet were cold, my digestion was poor and I had jerking of the limbs. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has made a radical change in my condition, building up the system and strengthening the nerves."—Mr. Wm. Branton, Victoria St., Strathroy, Ont.

CIVIC IMPROVEMENTS

A Large Let of Work Is Just Now in Progress.

The city workmen are making steady progress on the work laid out by the engineer and in fact so quickly are they laying the permanent sidewalks that the city surveyor has great difficulty in keeping ahead and it is owing to this fact that his departure for Sooke lake is delayed. The permanent sidewalks are fast being laid and already another bylaw has been passed providing for several miles more. It is expected that this will not complete the list and before the present work has been finished more will be ready for the workmen. At present the men are employed on Rendall street and Government street near the Dallas road and today they will commence on South Turner street.

The work on the Dallas Road embankment is also progressing very favorably and the wall is commencing to present a good appearance. It is very likely that the wall will be completely finished this year so that during the winter storms the bank will not be washed away.

The work on the sewers is also making good headway, the men have now crossed Oak Bay avenue and are making their way to connect with that portion running through the Jubilee Hospital grounds and thence through the Spring Ridge district. The outlet of the sewer has as yet not been commenced, but immediately the upper end is completed the scene of operations will be shifted, and work continued near the cemetery.

Work will also commence shortly on macadamizing Government street from Fisguard street north. For this an appropriation of $3,000 has been made and it is expected that it will be carried very close to the junction of Douglas and Government street.

Besides this work, the city is also engaged in laying water pipes in different parts of the city and on the whole there is as much city work being attended to at present than has been done during the past few years.

Help for the Kidneys Through Gin Pills.

A GUARANTEED CURE.

Read this letter. Read it twice. You have never heard such good news before—if your kidneys are sick. It tells how to be free of pain—how to have all your old-time health and vigor.

"I have been for years a sufferer with pain in the back and across the kidneys. There was scarcely a minute, day or night, that I was free of pain, and when I attempted to pass urine, the pain was almost unbearable. A friend of mine in Portage la Prairie, who was similarly afflicted, strongly advised me to try Gin Pills, as they had cured him. I bought a box of Gin Pills, and in less than a week, to my great delight, found myself without pain. I have had to go as often as every 20 minutes to urinate and several times during the night. Since taking Gin Pills, I sleep through the entire night and am not more than ordinarily inconvenienced during the day. I can earnestly recommend Gin Pills to anyone suffering from pain in the back, kidneys or bladder."

Mr. G. O. C. Gowler, Portage la Prairie.

Your druggist has Gin Pills, or will get them for you. 50c box—6 for $2.50.

If you will send us your name and address and tell us the paper in which you have read this we send you a trial box of Gin Pills absolutely free. You will get such relief that you will gladly continue the treatment until cured. Do it to-day—now—and start to cure yourself.

DAILY FASHION HINTS

Published by The Colonist by Special Arrangement With the American Fashion Company, 853 Broadway, New York.

Here is a French confection developed in chalk white chiffon taffeta. The body of the blouse is laid in deep tucks which run around the figure below a yoke of handsome embroidery. Where yoke and body meet there is a stitched band of silk braid. The dogue for shadow effects is shown in the suspender trimmings of shaded ribbon which combines three shades of nature, the deepest being almost a royal purple. Cuffs of the ribbon, bound with white silk and finished with lace trim the elbow sleeves.

Silk waits are worn more for afternoon functions this spring than for sometime, the light, lustrous chiffon silks being quite comfortable as sheer linens, and on the whole, possessing a greater element of elegance. Trimmed with embroidered linens, however, they are the quintessence of chic. The bretelle trimming lends variety to the conventional trimmings of tucks, plaits, shirrings, etc., without burdening a blouse with a surfeit of details.

Accompanying the blouse is a very pretty hat of white satin straw lined with shirred chiffon and trimmed with large pink roses. At the left side under the tilted brim is a handsome white ostrich plume.

NEW Y.M.C.A. HOME OPENED BY GOVERNOR

Handsome Building at Vancouver Is Now Ready For Occupancy.

The handsome new Y. M. C. A. building at the corner of Burrard and Dunsmuir streets was crowded in every nook last evening on the occasion of the formal opening by Lieutenant-Governor Dunsmuir, says the Vancouver News-Advertiser of Wednesday. Ladies predominated largely in the assembly and it was particularly pleasing to note the interest taken in the occasion by the wives of many prominent citizens. The rooms looked bright in their new paint and furniture, and the building was the subject of most favorable comment on every side. Ministers of various denominations showed by their presence the Christian breadth and non-sectarian spirit of the movement. The Rev. G. A. Wilson, pastor of Mount Pleasant Presbyterian church, presided, and was ably assisted by the Ven. Archdeacon Pentreath, Rev. C. C. Owen and others.

On account of the crush it was found most convenient to speak from the main stairway. The Rev. Mr. Wilson on behalf of the board of directors extended to the Lieutenant-Governor, who had kindly responded to the invitation of the board by his presence there that evening. It was a day they had long looked forward to, for what had been done had been accomplished with great labor and by the overcoming of great difficulties. Oftentimes indeed the way had been entirely blocked, but they had looked constantly forward to a permanent and greater victory, and certainly as they could congratulate the ladies who had labored so patiently and consistently to secure the completion of that building, and the citizens of Vancouver might also be proud and believe that in this building the city possessed one of its most valuable assets.

Mr. Wilson then described the

which today has a branch in every part of the civilized world. He thought it particularly fitting that the opening of the building should follow so closely on the opening of a similar building for young men in this city, and it suggested the thought that they were impartially seeking the welfare of both. The Vancouver Y. W. C. A. had been started in a small way in Vancouver in 1897, and had advanced steadily, so that the premises first occupied on Pender street soon proved too small and they had to move into the larger quarters on Howe street. Soon this also became inadequate and a later building became a necessity. Then they set to work and succeeded in erecting this splendid building, which was a grand tribute to the women engaged in the work, and something of which every woman in Vancouver might feel justly proud.

He then again welcomed the Lieutenant-Governor and cordially congratulated him on the position to which he had been appointed, the welcome being the more cordial because he was the first son of British Columbia to be placed in that position. (Applause).

Lieutenant-Governor Dunsmuir, who was received with applause, said: "Ladies and gentlemen, it affords me great pleasure to be with you on this occasion, and to declare this building of the Y. W. C. A. open for the purpose it has been erected for. I wish it all prosperity, and to each one of those who make it their home I also wish success and prosperity. I thank the Rev. Mr. Wilson for his cordial congratulations to myself."

His Honor then formally declared the building open, and all present joined in singing the Doxology.

The dedicatory prayers were very impressively read by Archdeacon Pentreath.

The Rev. C. C. Owen briefly described the building in its different parts and paid a warm tribute to the architect, Mr. Dalton, and to the contractors, Messrs. Beam & Halford. It was a tribute to their worth that while the lowest tender had been accepted they had put in better work than the specifications called for. The directors hoped in the near future to be able to build an addition to the building to provide for a library and other conveniences. The people of Vancouver had proved very generous, but it would still be necessary to call again upon their generosity in future. The building appeared pretty well furnished that evening, but had they been there in the morning they would not have seen so much, and a great deal was still necessary to complete the equipment. "So that while thanking you for past favors," concluded the Rev. Mr. Owen, "we are still looking for other favors to come."

Mr. E. B. Morgan, the treasurer of the association, gave a sketch of the Financial History of the Building.

He showed that while some ready money might be needed to complete the building, the financial standing of the association was good, since he estimated its assets at $10,507 and its liabilities at $10,270, leaving a balance in favor of the association for $9,237. Of the assets he estimated land and building at $17,000. He considered the board of directors was certainly to be congratulated on that showing.

Mr. W. H. Malkin spoke as a director of the great usefulness of the institution.

Letters of regret for unavoidable absence were read from His Worship the Mayor and from the Rev. John Simpson.

Archdeacon Pentreath spoke eloquently on the opportunities of the dedication of such a building at such a time. He said that of the great waves of human population now flooding the prairies of the West some portion would flow over the Rocky Mountains and into British Columbia, and hundreds of young girls would come from Eastern countries to make their home in this city. It would certainly be hard to overestimate the value of such a home as this to these girls in a place where everything was new and strange to them.

At the conclusion of Archdeacon Pentreath's address, little Miss Helen Newsom stepped forward and presented Lieutenant-Governor Dunsmuir with a handsome bouquet.

A Very Pleasing Feature of the programme was the presentation of a life membership certificate to Mrs. R. J. Skinner, as a token of her steadfast and faithful work on behalf of the association. The certificate was presented by Mrs. Faulkner and the address was read by Miss Breeze. Mrs. Skinner made a heart-felt and appropriate reply.

Harpur's orchestra was present and refreshments were served, and with music, song and conversation the evening passed very pleasantly. The sum of $1,000 is still needed to complete the building, and it is hoped that the well known generosity of the people of Vancouver will not be lacking till the amount is made up. Under any circumstances the new home of the association has been launched most auspiciously on its beneficent way.

In connection with the opening great credit is due to the convenors of committees and other officials who worked hard to make it the success it was. In this connection might be mentioned Mrs. Faulkner, Convenor of the Furnishing committee; Mrs. Newsom, of the Entertainment committee; Mrs. Banfield, the association treasurer, and Mrs. Rose and Mrs. Whitehead, who assisted in serving the refreshments.

The Alexander Blankets are 60 x 80 and they are the best white wool blanket in Victoria for $3.00. Robinson's Cash Store, 86 Yates street.

Before the rising of parliament for the Whitsuntide holidays, complaints were strongly expressed by the Labor party that no solution of the problem of unemployment has been attempted by the government. His former friends and colleagues made an attack on Mr. John Burns. It is intimated that 5 per cent. of our working classes are idle and that government work on farm colonies should be provided. The government has not been idle and Mr. John Burns, who knows the conditions of labor thoroughly has not been unsympathetic. But he takes the view that farm colonies are no remedy, and that palliatives are no permanent benefit. We have too long neglected the policy of prevention of poverty and have instead devoted ourselves spasmodically to quack cures. The present government holds our land system is the radical cause of poverty with the lack of technical training. Mr. Burns states the lamentable fact that of the unemployed 90 per cent. are unskilled laborers bred in towns who are being driven out of work by laborers of superior physique bred in the country. Obviously then an organic change is needed in our industrial system which will give the town bred worker a skilled trade and keep the rural worker on the land. The apprenticeship system in trades ought to be revised and our land system ought to be radically reformed. This the government intend doing. The farm colony, Mr. Burns regards as a "pauper compound, but most people here think it an immediate necessity, and the Labor party will continue to insist on the government's recognition of the idle man's right to work.

England today is sympathising sincerely with Ireland in mourning the loss of Michael Davitt. The name of that honest pure-souled patriot will live with the noble memories of Mazzini Garibaldi and Kossuth. Like them, he gave all for love of his country. In the long roll of those who have struggled, suffered for Ireland—none suffered more than Davitt. As a child he saw his parents turned out on the roadside and their home demolished by the tyranny of a landlord. In his boyhood he helped his family by working in a Lancashire cotton mill, where he had the misfortune to get his right arm torn off in the machinery. Before he was 20 he had joined the Fenian organization which was then making a desperate attempt to free the Irish peasant from the yoke of the worst landlord tyranny in Europe and at 24 he was arrested and condemned to 15 years penal servitude. It was then the iron entered his soul and all the bitterness of Davitt's career, all his hatred of English rule in Ireland may well be forgiven when it is remembered how brutally he was wronged. Seven years of best manhood was spent in Dartmoor prison—and on his release in 1879, he instantly became a force in Ireland and to him the Irish peasant owes the Land League, which after a generation of stormy agitation has emancipated the poor oppressed tenantry. The few years that Davitt spent in parliament were the least successful of his strange and chequered career, after his release from prison. He was more powerful outside parliament, and in America and Australia some of his best work for Ireland was accomplished. No violence or bloodshed was ever associated with his action, although his speech was often inflammatory. In private life he was one of the gentlest of men. He had just regard for the English people and amongst our public men he had perhaps the greatest admiration for Mr. Chamberlain. He has been heard to say that when Chamberlain was fighting with his back to the wall there was no one to approach him for courage or skill. Poor Davitt loved a fighter. The words of his last will just published "To all my friends I leave kind thoughts, to my enemies the fullest possible forgiveness and to Ireland the undying prayer for the absolute freedom and independence which it was my life's ambition to try and obtain for her." It must touch the heart of the generous English nation, and Davitt will be remembered for his patriotism when all the violence and trouble which agitation roused are forgotten.

Mr. Winston Churchill made a speech on Tuesday night at the annual Western Australian dinner which will be read with lively interest everywhere in Greater Britain. He spoke with great force and earnestness and the large influential company of colonials applauded him heartily. Speaking of the colonial conference he said it would revive and refresh the strong sympathy which prevails between the colonies and the old country. They would discuss freely and with a good mutual understanding all questions of Imperial politics, of trade, of communication, of education, of everything that tended to the prosperity of the Empire. In no way—with so much to talk about—could the conference be a failure. He hoped the question of inter-colonial preference would be fully discussed. If the tariff states of the Empire make reciprocal adjustments, they would be moving towards inter-Imperial Free Trade, which is a world of protection, would make the Empire strong and self contained. He very strongly urged the colonies to make Imperial Free Trade the ultimate goal of their ambition. Mr. Churchill's reference to Imperial defence was interesting. He recommended the conference to discuss the naval and military problem. The Australian Commonwealth is part of the greatest naval power in the world. The British navy, maintained as it has been, ought to be sufficient for the security of Australia. But as "the frontiers of the strong are men"—let Australia develop a citizen volunteer army which would be the greatest security of the present state of things in Australia. Mr. Churchill's amusing plea for colonial neutrality towards British political parties, was much appreciated. He asked the colonies to use both British parties. To have more intimate relations with one party would only end in disappointment. Western Australia in London are to be congratulated on an interesting gathering.

Everybody is interested in Mr. Harcourt's scheme for facilitating the business of taking divisions in the lobbies. The crush experienced now that the vast majority goes into one lobby is becoming intolerable. On Friday evening, an hour and a quarter was wasted in vexatious and obstructive divisions suggested to prevent progress by the absurd difficulty of getting through the division lobbies.

The university extension lectures movement inaugurated a generation ago by the late Arthur Toynbie in the east end of London has been making remarkable progress of late years and in Toynbie hall and other centres of culture, very wonderful is the interest excited among the many in the study of science and art. This week famous lecturers have been conducting parties of students through the British Museum and on Saturday afternoons during the summer, experts will lecture to students in Westminster Abbey, at St. Atlans and at Holland House and other places associated with history, literature or art. The university extension guild consists of working men and women who are fully alive to their great privileges.

It will be remembered that during the King's critical illness on the eve of his coronation two lady nurses from one of the London hospitals distinguished themselves by the devoted services while in attendance on His Majesty. Since that time one of these nurses has been attached to the Royal household and the other day the King conferred the M. V. O. upon her. The two nursing sisters to whom the King owes so much are gratefully honored. It was noticed that in the coronation procession their carriage preceded all the rest.

When Mr. Balfour is released from parliamentary duties, he spends much of his leisure time in London in enjoyment of the delight of music. During the Handel festival at the Crystal palace he may be seen daily strolling under the dome. His enthusiasm for music accounts for the fact that he has backed the Musical Copyright Bill introduced by Mr. T. P. O'Connor.

Now that Mr. Balfour is leading the opposition against the Education Bill, his appearance as the friend of nonconformists may seem a little surprising. In opening the Bazaar at the City Temple on Tuesday, (29th) he is perhaps moved by personal consideration purely. The Rev. R. J. Campbell is not only one of the ex-premier's friends, but as an ulster Unionist and a leader among nonconformist Unionists in England, he is a political supporter whom Mr. Balfour delights to honor. The Bazaar is for the purpose of a memorial to the late Dr. Parker for whom Mr. Balfour as well as Mr. Gladstone had always a great admiration and respect.

Mr. Compton Rickett, M. P., will open this bazaar on the second day and Mr. Lloyd George on the third day.

Mr. Jeremiah Jordan, the veteran Nationalist member for E. Fermanagh startled the house by his unexpected appearance on Friday to vote for the Irish Sunday closing of public houses. A week ago he had been stricken down in the lobby with what was supposed to be a paralytic seizure and for a week was laid up in Westminster hospital. The news of a division on a Temperance Bill roused the veteran teetotaler and his many friends in the house cheered him as he came back to the arena apparently in his accustomed health. Mr. Jordan is one of the few Protestant members of the Irish party.

This is the age of new things, new theories, new processes. The old Cream of Tartar Baking Powder has given way to the pure wholesome Crescent Egg and Phosphate—a Baking Powder chuck full of merit, and recommended by the U. S. Dispensatory.

SUNDAY OBSERVANCE BILL.

Protest From Liberal Paper Against a Liberal Government's Proposal.

Says the Nelson News in its issue of Friday last: We published yesterday the chief features of the amended Lord's Day Observance bill. Some of the amendments are far-reaching, and, as the bill, if it become law, will never be strictly enforced, give certain industries practically a free hand to work or not as they please on the Sabbath. Special concessions are made to the transportation companies and livery men and a new provision is inserted in behalf of domestic servants. This latter provision is liable to give rise to a great deal of misunderstanding and inconvenience. There is apparently no definition of the words "domestic servants," and it is therefore fair to assume that hotel, restaurant and dining car cooks, waiters, waitresses, chambermaids, etc., will come under this category, unless it be the intention of the Lord's Day alliance to close up all public eating places on the Sabbath.

Whilst concessions have been made to a variety of interests, the unfortunate newspaper publisher is to be compelled to work seven days a week. According to the Lord's Day alliance it is no sin for railroad men to work on Sunday until 9 o'clock in the morning, but for printers, reporters and editors to work until 3 a. m. on the Sabbath, instead of having to work all Sunday evening, they doubtless imagine there would be some dire visitation of Providence.

With Fitzpatrick translated to the supreme court bench there is just a little room for hope that this precious bill will be killed, or a clause inserted making it operative only in such provinces as it receives the endorsement of the local legislature. If the latter course be adopted, we may feel confident that the bill will never become law in British Columbia. If the promoters of this bill had been honestly desirous of securing to every worker in the land one day of rest in every seven, legislation to that effect could have been enacted and enforced without interfering with the rights and liberties of the individual, and such a measure would have met with the unqualified approval of every man, woman and child in the Dominion. The opposition to the present bill is not based upon any desire to compel employees to work seven days a week. Those who are most strenuously opposed to the bill are men who have invariably organized their business on the basis of six days' work a week.

So far as the British Columbia newspaper publishers are concerned, they have never attempted to publish more than six days a week and have no desire to do so. The publishers of morning papers have issued on Sundays in order that their employees might have a full day's rest. Under this bill of the Lord's Day alliance, the printers' Sunday is taken away from them, and the editorial staffs will be compelled to work seven days a week.

The time used is Pacific standard, for the 120th meridian west. It is counted from 0 to 24 hours, from midnight to midnight. The figures from height serve to distinguish high water from low water.

The height is measured from the level of the lower low water at spring tides. This level corresponds with the datum to which the soundings on the admiralty chart of Victoria harbor are referred, as closely as can now be ascertained.

Esquimalt (at Dry Dock).—From observations during six months, in 1900, compared with simultaneous observations at Victoria. For time of high water add 14 minutes to high water at Victoria. For time of low water, add 17 minutes to low water at Victoria.

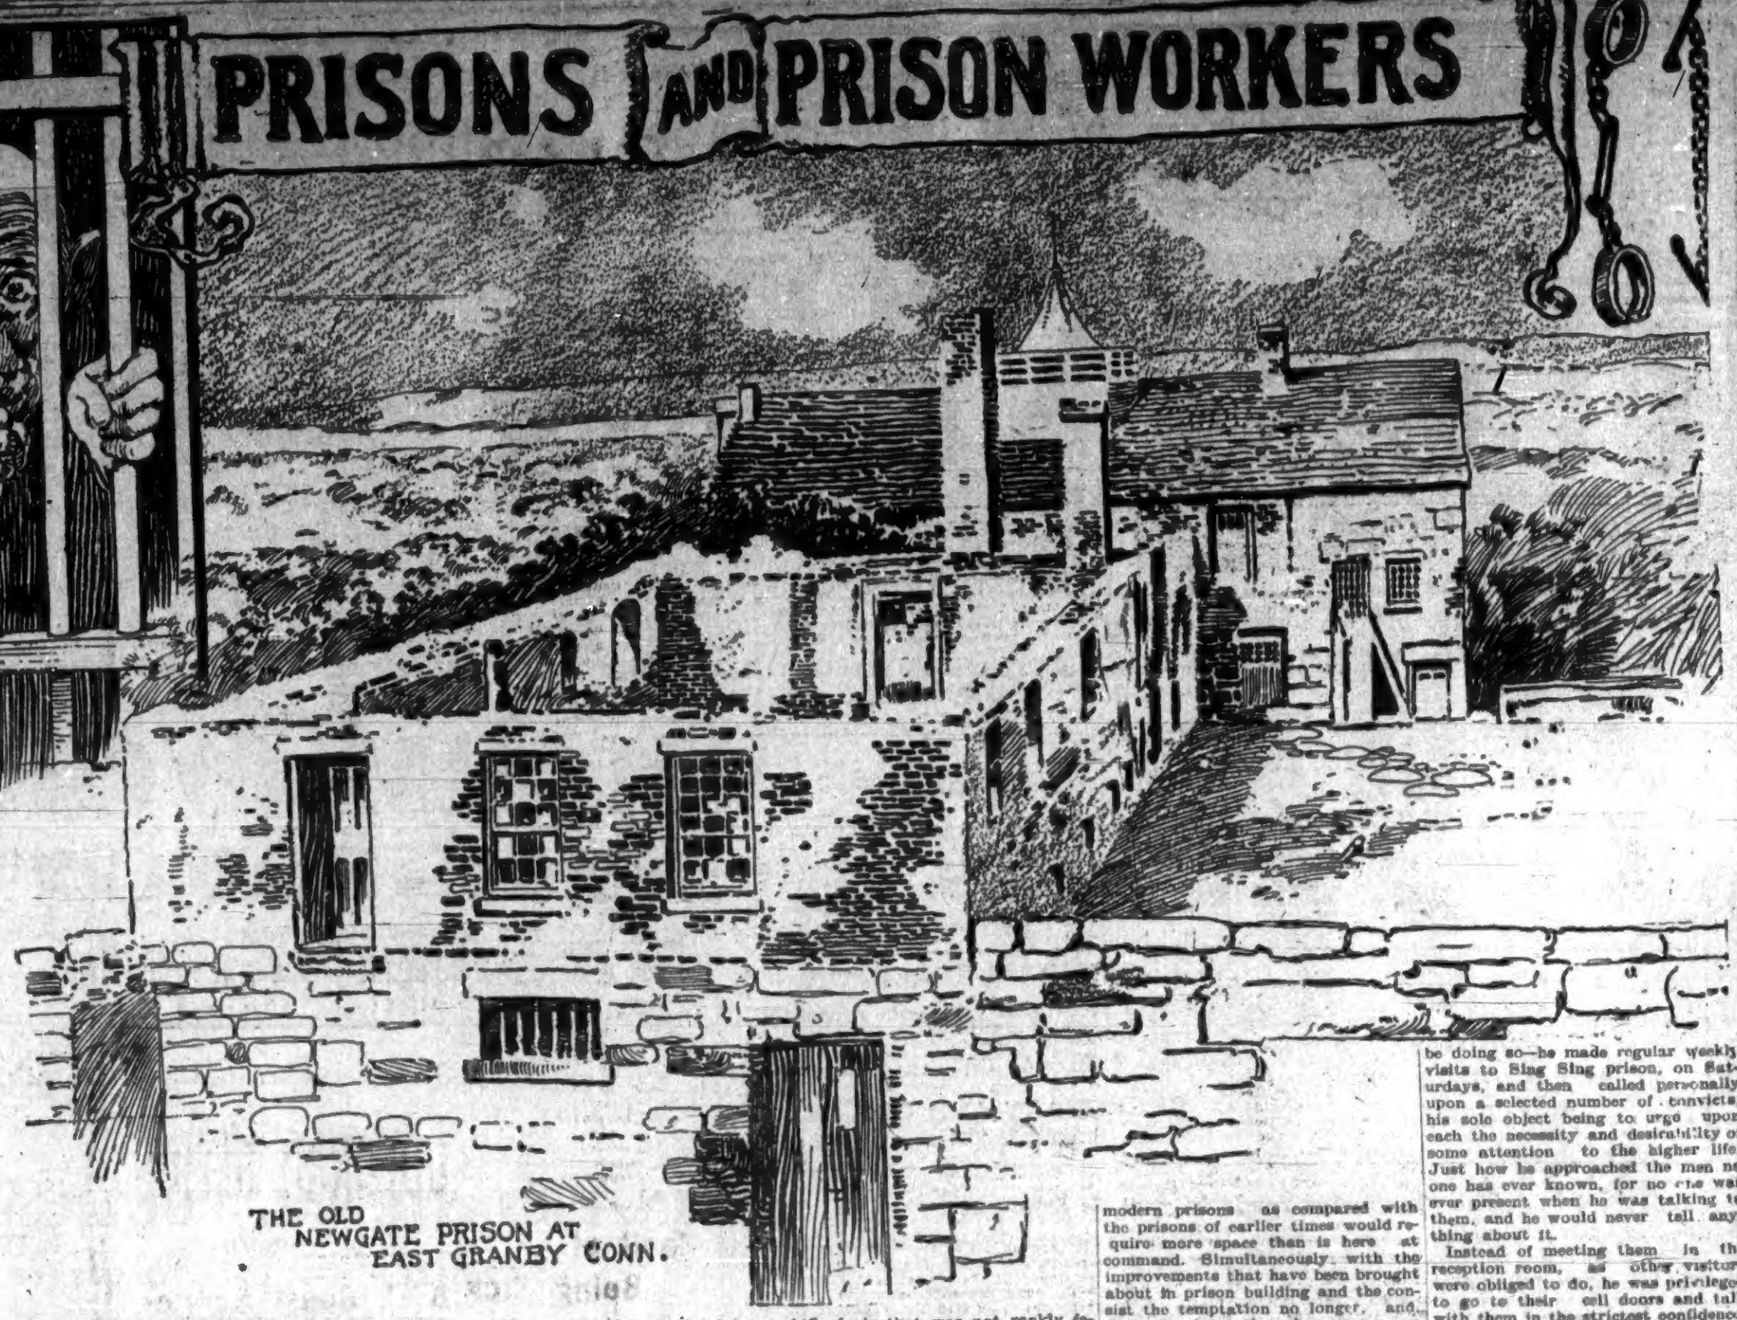

The Very Best Remedy for Bowel Trouble.

Mr. M. F. Borroughs, an old and well known resident of Bluffton, Ind., says: "I regard Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy as the very best remedy for bowel trouble. PRISONS AND PRISON WORKERS

THE OLD NEWGATE PRISON AT EAST GRANBY CONN.

Three recent news events which have revived the world's interest in Dungeons and prisoners.

Though the United States has five prisons nowadays, time was when prison reform was badly needed here.

Connecticut's old "Newgate" at Granby and its dungeons that were once a copper mine.

In revolutionary days this prison was as bad in practically every way as any Russian prison ever was.

Devotion of Alexander M. Hadden to the welfare of prisoners one of the most interesting phases of individual work for the good of prisoners.

By OSBORNE SPENCER.

There is something fascinating in stories of prison life, even to the well-balanced intelligence, and two or three recently published news stories have brought out a host of prison anecdotes and incidents.

The first of these was the account of the scientific writing done during a 25 twenty-five years' imprisonement in the Schlusselberg fortress by one M. A. Mozoroff, who was shut up in 1881 because he was supposed to have had a hand in the plot to assassinate the Czar. Mozoroff wrote on chemistry, and is about to publish his writings at St. Petersburg in the form of twenty volumes.

Two second was the story of one Wm. Kelly, sentenced for life to Dannemora Prison thirty-five years ago, [illegible] pardoned some two or three years ago, at the age of 85. His wonder at his release, for he had no idea it was coming, and his amaze at the changes in the outside world that had taken place during his imprisonment were the most striking features of the story.

The third and most recent was the story of J. Watson Hildreth' release from Sing Sing, where he had been serving a life sentence for helping to wreck a train some ten years ago, when only a boy in his teens. There was quite a romance in his story. During the early years of his imprisonment, while he was confined at Auburn, he was regularly visited by a young girl who had been his sweetheart. It was the fact that her visits left him morose and that her infatuation for him seemed bound to wreck her life, that caused his removal to Sing Sing, where she could not see him.

A HORRIBLE CONNECTICUT "NEWGATE."

Mozoroff's imprisonment, Americans would like to think, was accompanied by more privations than the imprisonment of either of the recently released Americans. Yet, though he was at first allowed to have no books, and no writing materials, this rigor was later modified; he was then allowed a variety of reading matter and the pens, ink and paper necessary to the writing of his books. Even in Russia, it seems prison life is not so bad as once it was.

Prison reform, indeed, has made great strides in all civilized lands in the last century and a half, and, though not every American is aware of it, it was needed on this side of the water as surely as anywhere in the world. For the lives of the prisoners in this country were nothing more nor less than "Hell on earth." Some of the prisones were continued along the same lines long after the organization of the colonies into what is now one of the world's greatest, proudest nations, a nation as proud of its prisons and their administration, and as proud of the "prison work" being done by many of its philanthropically minded men and women as it is of any other manifestations of its progress among the nations.

One of these horrible prisons was located at Granby, Ct. To this day a part of its walls are still standing there, and the dark and noisesome underground tunnels and shafts which it was supposed would render it positively jail-break-proof are still more or less intact.

STRONG CELLS IN AN OLD COPPER MINE.

The reason for the excavation of the tunnels and shafts wherein the most desperate of Connecticut's criminals were imprisoned in the years just before and just after the revolution, was the discovery of copper there a year more than two centuries ago.

In 1705 the people of Simsbury, as Granbury was then called, were thrown into a state of the most intense excitement by the discovery there of copper ore. For almost seventy years thereafter the mine was worked, and in that time the excavations into the earth and rock below the surface reached a depth of seventy feet, and several lateral galleries extending some distance underground were scooped out.

In 1773, three years before the Declaration of Independence, other copper mines that yielded better returns were discovered and the Granbury workings were abandoned. When the Revolution broke out the Simsbury Committee of Safety saw that the abandoned shaft and galleries would make an ideal prison, and forthwith they built a building over the mouth of the shaft and divided it and the galleries up rudely into cells.

Into the unspeakably gloomy dungeons thus created the Simsbury Committee of Safety threw such of their friends and neighbors as they suspected of being friendly to the King's cause. It would be hard to imagine a more horrible place for the confinement of human beings. Sunlight never could by any possibility penetrate its profound depths, of ventilation there could be none; sanitation as we understand it was positively out of the question.

The only method of reaching the working levels of the old mine was by way of a perpendicular ladder set up in the main shaft. Any one attempting to get away, it was reasoned, would have to climb that ladder, and as the mouth of the shaft was easy to watch, it was believed that escapes would be practically impossible; in fact that, seeing how impossible they were, no prisoner would have the nerve to make the attempt.

Yet many attempts to get away were made by the prisoners in the old copper mine, and there are legends and records of an attempted general delivery of prisoners which all but succeeded, and involved an extensive shooting scrape, the death of several prisoners and the injury of some among the guards.

The most striking attempt to get away from the prison in its whole history was made by a prisoner who climbed a rope hand over hand almost to the top of the shaft. Why he didn't climb the ladder is not related. Perhaps the ladder was in sections, a section being removable at the top, so that escape by the ladder would be impossible, even if the watchman at the mouth of the shaft were to fall asleep.

Any way, this liberty-looking prisoner tried to escape by the rope route, but, unfortunately for him, it broke when he was only ten feet from the end of his hand over hand progress toward freedom.

According to the old legends and records there were plenty of cogent reasons aside from the natural desire to be free again why the prisoners in the Connecticut Newgate should desire to get away from it.

Many of those thrust into its subterranean depths were sent there by the order of General George Washington himself, because he thought that at liberty they would be likely to work injury to the colonists' cause.

And once locked in the noisome old copper mine's depths, whether by Washington's orders or without them their lot was hideously hopeless. Not a few of those thought to be most dangerous were chained to the rock walls or floor, where for years, till released by merciful death, they were kept in a circumscribed area, almost wallowing in filth, the iron which fettered them to the rock eating into the flesh and causing hideous sores. They never saw a brighter light than that of a flaring torch or feeble tallow dip, and never by any chance could they even get one single whiff of air that was not rankly fetid and poisonous.

Fevers and other diseases caused by bad air, filth and dampness, to say nothing of black despair, unrelieved by any occupation whatever, harrassed the prisoners of this sombre new world "Newgate", and deaths were frequent—how many there were in the years it was used mainly as a political prison no one knows. After the close of the Revolution it was used as a State prison by Connecticut for twenty-five years. During that quarter of a century its conduct was much more sane and civilized, but even then it was a horrible place, far too horrible for the imprisonment of the worst criminals that might be imagined, even

SOME INTERESTING PRISON WORKER.

Some attempts had been made in the old world to improve the condition of prisons long before the final abandonment of the Connecticut "Newgate," but little or nothing of that sort was done in this country till years later.

In the course of the last century, however, prison building and the conduct of prisons and prisoners underwent a revolution—several revolutions, in fact. By 1867 or 1868, when Charles Dickens, who knew more than most men about prisons, came to this country, he was tremendously impressed by the great superiority of American prisons over those of England, yet so far has the science of penology—if the term be allowable—progressed since then that the very ptisons and the prison systems the great novelist praised most hane long been considered behind the age.

To enter into any description of modern prisons as compared with the prisons of earlier times would require more space than is here at command. Simultaneously with the improvements that have been brought about in prison building and the consist the temptation no longer, and duct of prisons there has grown up a great voluntary system of "prison work," so called, by men and women anxious to mitigate as much as possible the lot of the prisoners, both while in prison and after their release.

There has been no more interesting branch of this work than that carried on by the New York Prison Association, of which the late William M. F. Round was president for many years.

This oeganization pays a good deal of attention to the prisons themselves and their conduct, but it also makes a specialty of looking after the prisoners when their terms of service have expired, finding jobs for them, giving them shelter when nomeless, clothes when in rags, and acting as friend to them when friends are few and far between. During his lifetime Mr. Rounds counted Alexander M. Hadden among his ablest helpers in the work on which the hearts of both were firmly set.

Hadden's activities in behalf of the prisoners are unusual, and by no means confined to the sort of work undertaken by the prison association itself.

Though both rich and of an exclusive social circle, Mr. Hadden determined soon after he became interested in the association that he ought to give a good deal of his personal time and energy to the good of the prisoners. Being a religious man as well as a cotillion leader—he was at that time one of the three most popular "leaders" in New York society—he concluded it to be his duty to exert personally a religious influence upon as many men actually in prison as he could possibly come in contact with.

Accordingly, for years—he may still be doing so—he made regular weekly visits to Sing Sing prison, on Saturdays, and then called personally upon a selected number of convicts, his sole object being to urge upon each the necessity and desirability of some attention to the higher life. Just how he approached the men no one has ever known, for no one was ever present when he was talking to them, and he would never tell anything about it.

Instead of meeting them in the reception room, as other visitors were obliged to do, he was privileged to go to their cell doors and talk with them in the strictest confidence. This could not have been done had not the prison authorities believed thoroughly in Mr. Hadden's integrity and it was not possible to arrange it at all at first. When he proposed his private visits to the Warden the latter looked upon them with great disfavor, and almost refused to consider the plan; Hadden, however, had the strongest possible indorsement, and finally prevailed. His influence upon the men was so undeniably good that it was not long before the warden and all the prison authorities were his strongest supporters.

Of the men whom he was able to help make over through his heart to heart talks with them at the cell doors, of those whom he was able to help find their way into honest, self-respecting walks of life, there is no record, and never will be one, for he has not kept it, and becomes almost angry when an acquaintance tries to talk with him about it.

There are many workers among the prisoners of more or less the same type as Mr. Hadden in the United States to-day, and while some of them are perhaps unduly sentimental, as often is charged, yet, on the whole, the type is a noble one. There are few stronger evidences of the great progress made by this country in the years that have passed since the abandonment of Connecticut's Newgate prison at Granby, unspeakable in itself, and its prisoners, subject to no helpful influence, than the contrast to it and its conditions afforded by the prisons of to-day and the work done among and for the prisoners by such men and women as the late Mr. Rounds, Maud Ballington Booth and Mr. Hadden.

By ANNA BOLTON.

It had come at last—the success we had hoped for, longed for, almost despaired at times of ever attaining; and it had come in overwhelming measure.

We had been working together as usual. Jim Barford and I; working, not with light talk and merry jest as at first, but in the deepening silence that had fallen upon us in these latter disheartening days. And suddenly that silence had been broken. A heavy stroke from Jim's pick on the grind had loosened a slab of rock, and as it fell crashing down he staggered back and threw up both hands with a cry. I moved quickly toward him, thinking he must have been struck and hurt by the falling stone, and as he had, for the blood was running down his hand; but it is certain he never felt the wound, and when I saw what he had seen I did not wonder.

For the slab that had fallen had laid bare another layer in the rock, and that layer, for the length of a yard, or more, looked like a shelf of solid gold. Aye, and it was solid gold, too, or it meant the same thing, and the claim stood worth to Jim and me—for we shared our luck, for better or worse—fifty thousand pounds at the lowest computation, as we afterward found.

A week later we sat one night for the last time in our hut, the claim sold and the money banked to our credit. To-morrow morning we meant to make tracks for old England.

We had been smoking in silence, content for some little time, each busy with his own thoughts, when suddenly Jim took the pipe away from his lips.

"Old man," he said, "do you know I've been very near chucking it once or twice—this game?"

"So have I," I answered, smoking steadily on.

"And only one thing has kept me on with the grind all this weary while."

"Same here," I agreed again.

"Here's my reason," said he, with a sort of challenge in his voice, and, drawing something that looked like a photograph from his breast pocket he laid it on his knee and spread a big brown hand tenderly over it.

"Here's mine," said I, not to be behind, and I did the same thing and waited for more.

"It's a woman's face, this," he said slowly, "the face of the only woman I ever have loved, or ever shall. She promised to marry me as soon as ever I'd made my pile, and I'm going straight back to claim her. God bless her."

I nodded. Once more his case was mine. I think we had known something of the sort all along, and that knowledge had helped to make us the friends we were.

"Show," said I, and half lifted my hand as I spoke.

Slowly the great hand that I used to think matched Jim's great heart lifted itself in its turn, as if unwilling to expose the treasure that lay beneath it; but the light of the solitary candle, stuck in the cleft of the log in front of us, fell upon it at last, and at the same moment fell full upon my treasure, too.

And so for a minute, that seemed a year, we sat and stared, fascinated by the evil thing that black chance had conjured up. Then, with a groan, Jim covered his face with the hand he had lifted from that false pictured one, for there was some thing there that not even his own familiar friend might see. As for me, I swore under my breath long and steadily.

For though I had sat staring, scarcely able to credit the evidence of my own senses, it had needed but a glance to convince me that the pictured face was the same in Jim's and mine. The lovely, dancing eyes, the curly fair hair, the dimple to the left of the smiling mouth—no, I could not see that in his photo, but the head was taken in slightly a different position, and the dimple might not show unless the light fell in a certain way; in all else it looked absolutely the same. And that woman, who had cried on my neck when I left her, who had given me her false face as a last remembrance, she had tricked another man by the wiles that had caught me, and the mystery that we call Fate had thrown us together and made us friends! Friends in evil fortune and in good; friends still—thank God, I never doubted it—in evil such as we had never known before.

And once again silence fell upon us, and lasted until I could stand it no longer. I reached forward and laid my hand gently on his knee.

"Jim," I cried, and somehow in spite of all I could do, my voice even to myself sounded strange and as if it came from very far away, "pull yourself together, old man. She's not worth it—no woman is."

I waited a full minute before an answer came.

"She was worth all the world and more to me," Jim said at last with effort—and he got up heavily and went out, forbidding me with a look from following him. I saw him no more that night, though I sat and stared blindly out into the darkness until it gave way to the dawn.

I have had pleasanter companions than my own thoughts were through those long hours. I'd have staked my life on that woman's truth, thou my life on that woman's truth, though I'd known her but a month or two before I left England; now I never doubted—there seemed no room to doubt—that she had played us, two strings to her bow, meaning to marry the first one that met with luck. As for the other—well, what became of the other would scarcely trouble her, I suppose.

Of the days that followed even now I do not care to speak.

Three months later I set foot again in England, richer by a great fortune than I had left it, yet poorer infinitely than I had ever been before.

The train took me, a bare half day's journey, to the village I was bound for, and as if in a dream I found myself at last walking up the little flagged path that led to a pretty creeper-covered cottage.

"Dick! Is it really you?" she cried, her eyes alight, her whole face rosy with happiness. "At last—at last you have come back to me!"

Then the dancing eyes looked into mine, and their light went out. She shrank back from me in fear.

"Yes," I answered her, slowly, cruelly, with my eyes still fixed on her face, "I have come back—but Jim Barford has not, and shall I tell you why?"

Her white lips shook and an uncertain sound came through them as she strove once and again to speak. Suddenly her voice came clear.

"I never loved him—did you think that?" she cried, and clung to me with frantic hands. "Oh, believe it! No one but you—no one but you!"

No words of mine could have accused her like these from her own mouth I thought of poor Jim and the waste of his great love, for there was the ring of truth in that shameless speech. I prayed for strength to show her no pity as she had shown none.

Silently I drew something from my breast and held it toward her.

She looked at it and then back at me, and in her face was the dawn of a new fear.

"The hole—what is that hole?" she whispered.

Her shaking finger pointed to a small round hole that cut clean through the pictured face, charred at its edges as if with fire.

"Guess."

"It is a bullet-hole?" Her eyes dilated with terror.

"Yes," I said. "You have guessed aright. The bullet that reached Jim's heart from his own hand three months ago sped through that false—false face of yours on its way!"

I threw the card down on the ground before her, and she staggered back with a cry—a cry that rang in my ears and almost woke in me for the first time a little pity. The next moment I hardened my heart again and turned on my heel to leave her; I knew her memories would be sufficient punishment without any added word of mine.

But scarcely had I taken half a dozen steps when she sprang after me and stopped me, clinging to my knees.

"Dick! Dick! You shall not go like this!" she cried. "Oh! how cruelly you have misjudged me, and yet there is some little excuse, I know. Listen — listen! You must! You shall! Oh! I see it all now—I understand what you think; but you are wrong! This photograph is not mine; it is my sister's—I can prove it easily! Surely you have heard me speak of my sister Mary? You never saw her; she was away with our grandparents the summer you were here, but you must have heard me mention her?"

So I had, I remembered it now, and suddenly I felt my heart give a great leap that almost left me breathless. Could it be true—was it possible that two faces could be so similar? If so, I had indeed misjudged her—cruelly misjudged her.

"She died three months ago," she said gently, answering my look. "Oh, Dick, I have missed her so! But now I am almost glad—glad that she will never know. And they are both in God's hands."

"Alice, what can I say?" I cried. "I have been a fool and a brute! I might have known you better, I might have trusted you—at least I might have waited to hear what you could say on your own behalf! Now surely I have killed your love forever, and it is no more than I deserve."

"Ah! my dear, women do not love like that—when they really love!" she said softly. "Kiss me, Dick, and let us try to forget it all. We have learnt our lesson, and I do not think that anything will ever come between us again."

Steamer Tremont of the Boston Steamship company, Capt. Garlich, the third liner to arrive from the Orient during this week, reached port early yesterday morning after a fast and uneventful passage. The steamer left Manila on May 10th, and was in dock at Kowloon being overhauled and cleaned and painted, for nine days, proceeding thence to Moji where she coaled and arrived at Kobe on June 2nd. After loading cargo from lighters she continued to Yokohama, where further cargo was loaded, and the steamer sailed for Victoria on June 7th. She had a full complement of passengers. There were 56 saloon passengers and 104 steerage. The cargo was a good one, including hemp, etc., from Manila, tea, rice and general merchandise from Japan and China.

The voyage was interesting for one event, a timely one, seeing it is June—one of the passengers, a member of the United States educational service in the Philippines met and loved a Seattle stenographer who was making a return trip by the steamer, and so well did Cupid speed his arrows that the couple became engaged during the voyage.

Among the passengers was Major General Ventrees, a distinguished British officer in charge of the British troops in North China, with headquarters at Tientsin, and who is bound to England on furlough, accompanied by his wife and daughter. He has not relinquished the command of the troops. Major General Ventrees, served with distinction in the Nile campaign, and was mentioned in despatches as well as being promoted to lieutenant colonel. He was later quarter master general of the Egyptian campaign of 1885-6 and was assistant adjutant general in India in 1896-7.

In an interview given to a Colonist reporter Major General Ventrees said he did not anticipate any trouble in China as hinted by other travelers. As long as Yuan Shih Kai, viceroy of Chili, one of the most remarkable men of China, remained in power he did not anticipate any trouble. The noted viceroy was now engaged in building a modern army for China and as well as could be seen from their drilling the troops were very efficient. The Chinese army showed well during the manoeuvres of last autumn and extensive manoeuvres were being planned for this autumn. Following the lead of Italy last year, Germany has withdrawn her field forces in North China, but none of the Pekin legation guards of the various powers have been withdrawn, or are likely to be withdrawn. It is not likely, the general thinks, that other powers will withdraw or weaken their North China field forces.

J. F. Kennedy, an American journalist who until recently was publisher of the Yokohama Advertiser, arrived en route to Seattle to join his wife who was in San Francisco during the disaster and unnerved in consequence. Mr. Kennedy has been eight years in the Orient, being connected with the journalism of Manila and Shanghai before proceeding to Japan. He thinks that the various newspapers of the Orient would be bettered by a little more "American hustle." Mr. Kennedy said there was a general impression that another war would be fought between Japan and Russia as soon as Russia could recoup her strength for another campaign. What ground there is for this he could not say, but he instanced a conversation he had recently with some noted Japanese who gave it as their opinion that another war would be fought. Already, he said, there are many questions arising and much friction between Russians and Japanese. At Vladivostok recently no less than 21 Japanese were imprisoned on the charge of being spies, and restrictions are being made by both nations for search of steamers, etc., which cause no end of friction.

Mr. Kennedy said foreign merchants in Japan were considerably worried as a result of the impending imposition of the new customs tariff, which goes into force this month on some articles, but not until October generally. The whole post-bellum legislation of the nation, he says, is being framed with an idea of ousting the foreign interests everywhere in the Orient in favor of the Japanese. He confirms the reports of the arrangement for making Dalny a free port in the sense that duties will be remitted on Japanese imports and that the freightage will be also in part be remitted. In Korea and Manchuria every effort is being made to conserve the trade for Japan. In Korea the situation of the Koreans is desperate, for the Japanese are usurping every governmental office and are treating the Koreans as a conquering nation would seize spoils in the country of a defeated enemy. It is this attitude that is responsible for the revolution which is reported from Korea, a movement which will only make the Japanese more powerful in the unfortunate Hermit Kingdom.

Bishop W. Sellew of the Free Methodist church and wife, who are on a tour of the world, inspecting the missions of the church, were other passengers. He visited South Africa and India, where he saw things which caused him to testify eulogistically to the advantages of British rule, and has been also touring in China and Japan. While in Honan province he went through a disturbance in which Chinese were killed. The provincial government at once sent 6,000 troops to quell the disturbance and 40 of the leading rioters were beheaded.

Graybill, a missionary teacher from Canton, Ara Manala, a Filipino bound to Washington on a political mission, were other arrivals.

A Heavy Load to Carry.

Along with dyspepsia comes nervousness and general ill-health. Why? Because a disordered stomach does not permit the food to be properly digested, and its products assimilated by the system. The blood is charged with poisons which come from this disordered digestion, and in turn the nerves are not fed on good, red blood, and we see symptoms of nervousness, sleeplessness and general breakdown. It is not head work, nor over physical exertion that does it, but poor stomach work. With poor, thin blood the body is not protected against the attack of germs of grip, bronchitis and consumption. Fortify the body at once with Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery—a rare combination of native medicinal roots without a particle of alcohol or dangerous habit-forming drugs.

A little book of extracts, from prominent medical authorities extolling every ingredient contained in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will be mailed free to any address on request by postal card or letter. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Many years of active practice convinced Dr. Pierce of the value of many native roots as medicinal agents and he went to great expense, both in time and in money, to perfect his own peculiar processes for rendering them both efficient and safe for tonic, alterative and rebuilding agents.

The enormous popularity of "Golden Medical Discovery" is due both to its scientific compounding and to the actual medicinal value of its ingredients. The publication of the names of the ingredients on the wrapper of every bottle sold, gives full assurance of its non-alcoholic character and removes all objection to the use of an unknown or secret remedy. It is not a patent medicine nor a secret one either. This fact puts it in a class all by itself, bearing as it does upon every bottle wrapper The Badge of Honesty, in the full list of its ingredients.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" cures, weak stomach, indigestion, or dyspepsia, torpid liver and biliousness, ulceration of stomach and bowles and all catarrhal affections no matter what parts or organs may be affected with it. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the original little liver pills, first put up 40 years ago. They regulate and invigorate, stomach, liver and bowels. Much imitated but never equaled. Sugar-coated and easy to take as candy. One to three a dose.

LEGAL INTELLIGENCE.

(In the Full Court.)

Fagan vs. The Times Printing and Publishing Company, Limited. (Before Hunter, C. J., Irving and Morrison, JJ.) This appeal from Duff, J., brought up the question as to whether it was permissible in law for the proprietors of Steedman's Soothing Powders to use the name of Dr. Fagan in the way of advertising their patent medicine. The language in the advertisement complained of is the following: "I found no poisons in Steedman's Soothing Powders" (Evidence of Dr. Chas. J. Fagan, Secretary Provincial Board of Health.)"

An application was made to Mr. Justice Duff for an injunction to restrain The Times Printing & Publishing company from publishing Dr. Fagan's name in any advertisement advertising Steedman's Soothing Powders; but that learned judge refused to make the order, considering that the use of Dr. Fagan's name, in this way, was permissible, but, at the same time, rather deprecating the course adopted. Dr. Fagan upon affidavit stated that there was no authority from him for the use of his name and that in his opinion it was not right or proper that his name should be used and an isolated statement of his evidence given publicity in the way of advertising a patent medicine, at the same time admitting that he gave the evidence set forth in the advertisement. In the affidavit of Mr. D. M. Rogers, of counsel for Messrs. Steedman & Co., before the coroner, he stated that the advertisement was published at the instance of Messrs. Steedman & Co.

Mr. A. E. McPhillips, K. C., counsel for Dr. Fagan, cited in his argument amongst other cases that of Maxwell vs. Hogg, 36 L. J. Ch. 433, wherein Lord Justice Cairns said, speaking of the case of Clark vs. Freeman, (17 L. J. Ch. 142,) that it might have been decided in favor of the plaintiff on the ground that he had a property in his own name. And, further, Lord Selbourne had held the same in re Riviere's Trade Mark, 53 L. J. Ch. 578. Mr. McPhillips further cited the language of Mr. Justice North (now Lord North) in the case of Pollard vs. Photographic Company (1888), 58 L. J. Ch. at p. 255. "The right to grant an injunction does not now depend in any way on the existence of property as alleged; nor is it worth while to consider carefully the grounds upon which the old Court of Chancery used to interfere by injunction. But it is quite clear that independently of any question as to the right at law, the Court of Chancery has always had an original and independent jurisdiction to prevent what that court considered and treated as a wrong, whether arising from a violation of an unquestionable right, or from breach of contract or confidence as was pointed out by Lord Cottenham in Prince Albert vs. Strange, 1 Mac. & G. 25; 18 L. J. Rep. Chanc. 120." Mr. McPhillips urged that upon this holding the present case was one for relief, as Dr. Fagan gave his evidence in a Court of Record, as a Coroner's Court has been so held (Taomas vs. Churton, 2 B. & S. 475) and should be privileged, i. e., it should only be used in a fair and correct report of the proceedings, but, certainly, not in an advertising way. Further, that it affected Dr. Fagan in the way of his profession, as in his affidavit he stated that he had not given his permission for the use of his name in the advertisement, and that in accordance with his views of medical ethics the use of his name in connection with the advertisement would be improper whether used with or without permission.

Mr. Justice Irving remarked that it would appear to him that what Dr. Fagan had stated and what was being made use of was "an opinion given by a professional man on a privileged occasion, and consequently he should be entitled to protection.

Mr. G. H. Barnard, counsel for the defendant, urged that upon the [illegible] cases the case was not one [illegible] injunction. Further, that [illegible] right to publish and [illegible] did, because the [illegible] had been impugned [illegible] public eye; and he cited [illegible] vs. Dewey (1885) 54 L. J. [illegible] 283. He also cited Dockrell vs. Dougall, 80 L. T. 556 (C. A.) where it was held that the plaintiff, a doctor, whose name had been used without his authority in an advertisement to puff the sale of a medicine, had no cause of action either for damages or for an injunction, unless he could show that the publication was defamatory or was injurious to him in his property or profession.

This case, it may be remarked, was launched as one for libel and the jury found that there was no libel, and there was no allegation that the publication affected him in his profession, and Lord Justice Vaughan Williams stated in his judgment that he did not wish it to be at all understood that the decision of the court was that there would be no relief granted where it was attempted to make use of a medical man's name to further the sale of a quack medicine.

The Chief Justice remarked that if it was admitted, as it must be admitted, that a fair, true and correct report could be made of proceedings in court, what was there to prevent the advertisement of a statement, admitted to have been made in the course of the proceedings—where was the line to be drawn?

Mr. McPhillips stated in answer that the press had the undoubted right in the ordinary course of news gathering to insert a fair report of the proceedings, and to that a privilege extended; but there was no right to use the statement made by Dr. Fagan in the way of advertising, and that it was a case for relief.

The Chief Justice remarked that undoubtedly Lord Cairns had said there was property in a name—and was there not the right to be left alone? For instance, would one be entitled to take the photograph of a person without leave? He hardly thought so.

Mr. Barnard cited the recent case where Marie Corelli endeavored to restrain the use of her portrait upon post cards, the photograph being taken without her authority, and that Mr. Justice Swinfen Eady had refused to grant an injunction. The Chief Justice doubted whether if that case was taken to appeal that it would be sustained.

During the argument Mr. Barnard stated that the advertisement in any case was now withdrawn.

Mr. Justice Irving then asked Mr. Barnard if he would undertake that it would not be reinserted. This undertaking Mr. Barnard could not give.

After the luncheon adjournment the Chief Justice asked if the appeal was to be considered or treated as a motion for judgment? To this Mr. McPhillips assented; but Mr. Barnard could not agree as he was without instructions.

After some further argument the decision of the court was that in view of the discontinuance of the advertisement, the appeal became an academic one, and really there was no necessity to give judgment, in that the plaintiff was not intending to proceed for any damages. That as the facts now were, the action would be stayed, the appeal to stand until the next sitting of the Full Court. If, however, the advertisement should be reinserted, there would be the liberty to renew the application for an injunction.

The Habit of Being Sick

You get accustomed to having attacks of biliousness and headache, indigestion and constipation, and, after a few attempts at a cure, your ailment becomes chronic and day after day and week after week you go on suffering and making yourself and friends unhappy and miserable.

Why not go at it in earnest and follow up treatment that is bound to win out and to replace disease and suffering with health and happiness?

By securing activity of the liver, kidneys and bowels Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills effect a thorough cleansing of the whole filtering and excretory systems and bring prompt relief from these common and annoying symptoms.

The benefits are lasting because Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills insure a good flow of bile from the liver, and so make sure good digestion and a regular movement of the bowels.

Your doctor gives you treatment which, according to his theory of medicine should benefit you, but we recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills on the strength of the hundreds of thousands of similar cases which they have actually and positively cured. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Company, Toronto.

WILL IT BE BRYAN?

Montreal Star.

The Americans are still two years away from their next presidential election; but the Democrats are apparently getting ready to nominate Bryan for the third time. Several influences are converging to this end. To begin with, the trial of a "safe and sane" conservative in 1904 failed miserably. Judge Parker was probably as a man than his opponent, the irrepressible Roosevelt; but the moneyed interests did not rally to him. Probably they despaired beating a popular idol like "Teddy," no matter how industriously they worked their check books. Or they may have merely preferred to trust to the Republican wheel-horses with a frisky "leader" rather than to the less docile Democratic combination with a steady "leader." In any event, Parker was snowed under, and the Democrats disgusted with their experiment in conservatism.

Then President Roosevelt has himself been preparing the way for a Radical Democratic candidate in 1908. He has been out-Bryaning Bryan in his attacks upon capital and powerful moneyed interests. Very recently he has broken a lance with the railways; he has assailed the Standard Oil; and just now he is locking horns with the Beef Trust. All this is very un-Republican, as the common people understand the term. He has not proved himself to be a "safe and sane" president, in the interpretation of Wall Street; and the financial leaders of the Republic must wish occasionally that they had made a united fight for Parker.

But one thing is clear—and that is that, after such a presidential term by a Republican president, there can be no hearty campaign against the "dangerous radicalism" of a man like Bryan. To endorse Roosevelt and to pretend to alarm at the revolutionary sentiments of "a hidebound conservative like William Jenninga Bryan"—to quote Mr. Dooley—would be ridiculous in the extreme. If Roosevelt himself were running again, there would not be so much room for Bryan. The people might prefer the radical who had "carried them over." But Roosevelt is pledged not to accept another term; and his successor as Republican candidate cannot help being distinctly more "safe and sane" than he has been. Bryan might then be as distinctly his heir as McKinley was the heir of Cleveland as against Bryan in 1896.

Another influence making for the nomination of Bryan is undoubtedly the phenomenal growth of the influence of Mr. Hearst. Mr. Hearst's campaign against Tammany last year astonished the Union; and it is on the cards that he may capture the gubernatorial nomination of the party this autumn—and that he may be elected. This would make him a logical candidate for the presidential nomination in 1908; and it is doubtful whether—in the present temper of the party and the country—any one could beat him except the mighty Bryan. Bryan, however, is likely to be more acceptable to the conservative influences in the party than Hearst; and Bryan has still his faithful following in the West.

There is, of course, still another turn to the kaleidoscope which the Bryan movement may bring. The Republicans will be genuinely afraid that he will be elected; and will be ready to take almost any steps to prevent it. The moneyed interests are almost certain to be in a similar panic. Together they may set out to coerce Roosevelt into accepting the nomination in order to "save the nation." It will not be, we may be sure, that they love Roosevelt the more, but that they dread Bryan the most. Still they may overcome the scruples of "the Man of Destiny," and induce Roosevelt to make the race.

In such a case, it will be a battle royal; with the trusts thinking that it is "tails, they lose," in any event. The American people have been goaded into a condition of frenzy; and the "vested interests" need not look for a calm and judicial consideration of their side of the case. They are girding at President Roosevelt today because he is compelling them to "clean house," but subsequent events may convince them that they never had a truer friend.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. TERRIBLE PAINS ACROSS BACK

SUFFERED EIGHT MONTHS WITH KIDNEY TROUBLE. WOULD HAVE TO STAY IN BED FOR THREE DAYS AT A TIME

Doan's Kidney Pills CURED HIM

Mr. Thomas Fitzgerald, Haseldean, Ont., writes us as follows: "I was a great sufferer from kidney trouble for eight months. I had terrible pains across the small of my back. I would have to stay in bed for three days at a time and could not do any work. I tried several remedies but of no avail, and also plasters but they were of no use.

One day a neighbor of mine advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills. I was so much discouraged I told him I was tired of trying remedies, but he urged me to try one box so I purchased one, and before I was through using it, I found a change for the better so I got five boxes more, and I have had no trouble with my kidneys since. I would not be without Doan's Pills in my house."

It is really not difficult to cure kidney trouble in its first stages. All you have to do is to give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial. They are a never-failing cure for all forms of kidney trouble. They quickly relieve the congested, overworked kidneys, and gradually bring them back to health.

Doan's Kidney Pills 50 cents per box or three boxes for $1.25, all dealers or The Doan Kidney Pill Co., Toronto, Ont.

MARECHEN NOT SOLD.

No Bids Received for the German Steamer—May Make Repairs.

When the time came for the opening of tenders for the purchase of the German steamer Marechen it was found that no satisfactory offer had been made, and it is probable that the owners, M. Jebsen, represented in Victoria by Captain Schenwandt, will call for tenders for the necessary repairs, specified in the report of Capt. Gibbs and Mr. Mitchell, surveyors who examined the wrecked vessel. Nothing has been definitely decided upon, however, and instructions are being awaited from Germany before any further step is taken.

MARKETS YESTERDAY WERE VERY BRISK

Local Grown Products in Good Demand---Strawberries in Favor.

Business in the markets yesterday was good, but confined to local products. All the strawberries grown by members of the Fruit Growers' association are snapped up directly by the retailers. The price by the distributing house has been maintained at 10c. wholesale now for some time, and these are sold at 2 boxes for 25c. There are, however, several growers outside of the association, who sell their product individually and at lower prices, and these are sold at 10c. per box. This competition in price is bound to lower the retail price shortly. Yesterday the San Francisco boat, the City of Puebla, arrived, and it was expected she would have a good cargo of Californian fruit on board, but apart from a few sacks of onions and potatoes, nothing entered the market. The boat brought a few boxes of peaches and plums, but they were condemned and destroyed by the government officials. The state of the market makes it very favorable for local growers, and prices rule high and business brisk.

Six Months in "2 in 1."

A Consulting Chemist Makes a Novel Experiment. An Unsolicited Letter that Explains Itself.

"I write to state that on account of your "2 in 1" Shoe Polish being criticised, and the charge made that it injured leather, I made this test as follows:

I mixed the contents of a box of "2 in 1" Shoe Polish, bought at a retail store from regular stock, with four ounces of water and into this mixture put a kid glove, and left the said glove in the mixture in a bottle from June 15th to December 15th, 1905—a full six months. I then took the glove out, washed it and examined it. The fine leather of the glove was not affected in the least. It was as pliable and soft as when new, and was not altered in condition, nor were the stitches affected in any way. This test, I consider, proven that "2 in 1" does not injure the finest leather.

I hereby state that these facts are correct and true.

J. M. WILLIAMS, Consulting Chemist, Hamilton, Dec. 15th, 1905.

Finance and Commerce

New York, June 20.—There were points of aggressive strength again in today's stock market, but the movement was irregular and interrupted by decisive actions. The response of the market to the good news of the day had an unsettling influence on sentiment from the fear that under it advantage would be taken to sell stocks. Other news developments were not important. Foreign exchange continued to decline under the influence of bills against the Paris subscription to the Pennsylvania loan. The demand for time loans for seven and eight months continued strong in this market and the majority of business was done at 5½ per cent. asked. The continued lack of support of Interborough Metropolitan had an unsettling influence on the day's market. The day's most active stocks made their highest prices late in Reading, but did not carry the list as a whole with them, and the closing tone was irregular.

Bonds were steady; total sales, par value, $1,345,000. United States bonds were unchanged on call.

SPORTS

LACROSSE

To Meet Westminster.

The members of the Victoria Lacrosse club are training faithfully for the match on Saturday at Oak Bay, in an endeavor to make up for the defeat sustained at Vancouver, and if practice has anything to do with the result, it is a foregone conclusion that Victoria will win. Although at present it is impossible to say what the team will be, it is certain that it will be the strongest that can be gathered together. It is very likely that several of the players will have difficulty in arranging to play, as many of the team are members of the Fifth regiment, and as such, they will be expected to attend at camp on Saturday. The boys are very anxious to win, and are somewhat disappointed to know that some of their best men will thus be unable to make the team. The management as well as the players are still endeavoring to learn why Saturday was selected for the field sports, when it was known that the date had been previously selected at a league meeting held on the Mainland on May 19. The fact that both the lacrosse match and the field sports are scheduled for the same day will necessarily lessen the attendance at both, and in the case of the lacrosse match it will practically throw them in debt for the game, when by other arrangements they could have made a small surplus. Notwithstanding these difficulties, the boys will do their best to win and uphold the honor of Victoria. They will have their final practice this evening, after which the team will be chosen to represent the club on Saturday.

THE TURF

A Hundred Wins.

W. B. Gates, a race horse, owned by Capt. Rice, completed a very successful career on Monday last at Seattle, when by winning one of the races he accomplished a feat seldom equalled by any race horse, as it marked the hundredth victory that horse secured since his first appearance on the track. The old horse has raced on nearly every track in the United States, and it is the intention of his owner to retire him from the track and allow him to rest in peace for the remainder of his days. So far his record has only been equalled by one horse, and he was then turned out with the best that money could buy for his good, and it is the intention of Capt. Rice to treat his old campaigner in a like manner.

The victory for the horse on Monday was marked by intense enthusiasm by the spectators, and on his return to the judges' stand he received a great ovation. It is very likely that Capt. Rice, with the remainder of his string will be seen in this city during the Dominion Day races. He has several very good horses in his stable, and if he decides to enter in the races in this city, Victorians will be given an opportunity of seeing some good horseflesh, and also a horse owner who has followed racing since he was a boy.

BASEBALL

Will Play at Vancouver.

A baseball team from the Victoria college will journey to Vancouver on Friday, where they will try conclusions with a team of the Vancouver college. These teams have already met this season, and the result was a defeat for the local team, but since that time they have been training continuously, and expect to turn the tables.

THE OAR

J. B. A. A. Regatta.

The crews from the J. B. A. A. that intend taking part in the races on Saturday are training every evening despite the high wind that has been prevalent during the last few days. As far as can be seen the crews are very evenly matched and some good races are looked for. There is also very keen rivalry among the rowers, and this also will tend to make the events interesting. The races will be contested over the harbor course, starting at Coffin island and ending at an imaginary line drawn from the clubhouse. In this manner those who are interested in the events may be able to witness the finishes. The crews that have been selected are as follows:

Simpson, stroke; Powell, 3; Lucas, 2; Irving, bow.

Clarke, stroke; Battersby, 3; Kent, 2; Jamesson, bow.

Jenkinson, stroke; Power, 3; Heyland, 2; McArthur, bow.

Baylis, stroke; Townsley, 3; Hall, 2; Hiscocks, bow.

Wolfenden, stroke; Cridge, 3; Sommers, 2; Todd, bow.

FIELD SPORTS

The regimental field sports at Macaulay Point on Saturday are creating a great deal of interest. The programme arranged is very complete, and many of the members are expected to participate in the events. Entries for the competitions are being sent in to Sergt. Lettice, and close this evening. The first event on the programme will commence sharp on time, and it is expected that the events will be more evenly contested than ever before.

OVERTAKEN BY NAUSEA:

You don't know whether it's going to stay down or come up.

You feel like thirty cents and feel like even worse. If one thing is quicker than another, it's "Nerviline." Ten drops in sweetened water gives relief instantly. Almost like magic is the change you experience. The cause of the nausea is removed, every symptom of vomiting and indigestion is cured within ten minutes. When Polson's Nerviline is so trusty and economical, a bottle at home wouldn't be amiss. Large ones for a quarter at all dealers.

Cholera Morbus Cured.

This is one of the most severe and dangerous diseases. In almost every neighborhood some one has died from it. Mrs. W. E. Smith, of La Marque, Texas, writes: "My little girl was taken with cholera morbus brought on by bad drinking water caused by the great Galveston storm. The attack was so severe that I feared she would die. A druggist advised me to give her Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which I did and three doses of it relieved her. Since then I have recommended this remedy to many friends, and it has never failed in any instance." For sale by all Druggists.

GO TO

John D. Rockefeller

THOU SHOPPER

Consider His Ways

This advice is given because Mr. Rockefeller is an improvement upon the fabled aut--- formerly chief example of hustle and thrift.

It is related of the richest American that, in reply to a friend, who asked him about the reasons of his success, he said, in effect;

I Think My Business Success Is Due Largely to Having Always Tried to Place a Proper Value Upon Units. . . .

This idea is so big, so all-embracing, that it is a safe creed for any one, business-man or who-not. It goes beyond the ant and the "busy bee" who have preached—chiefly long hours of labor!

The shopper—which means the universal woman and the nine-tenths universal man—has a daily opportunity to test the unit rule—to buy one thing at the right store and right price before making a second purchase, and to repeat the process indefinitely—thus making right buying yield a real income, as over wrong buying, at the end of the year. Of course, only shoppers who study advertisements are able to place a "proper value on units," so that the point of this preachment is plain.

GROUND BONE FOR POULTRY

Manufactured by us consists of ground beef bones thoroughly dried and free from grease. It is more economical and better in every way than raw beef bone—rich in bone phosphate of lime, which is so necessary for making good egg shells and for building up the frame of the chicken. Should be placed in liberal quantities in a clean, dry place, easily accessible to the chickens at all times. Price per ton, $35.00; per 100 lbs., $2.00.

PACKMEN'S CASE IS DELAYED

Four Men Accused of Highway Robbery are Allowed Out on Own Recognizances.

The four hackmen, Corbett, Marsden, Buyer and Lawson, were again before the police magistrate yesterday morning, charged with highway robbery, having, it was alleged, taken $35 from L. Hewitt during a drunken brawl in front of a Chatham street house. The chief witness of the prosecution, Hewitt, did not appear; he has not been seen since last Friday, when he was at the Elk saloon. It is reported that he has left the city. In the absence of the witness the police asked for a remand for a week. Messrs. Frank Higgins and M. Moresby, for the defence, protested against the men being kept in jail—they were unable to get the bail of $1,000 each. The counsel asked that the bonds be altered and the prisoners allowed out on their own recognizances. This was done, and the four men were released on their recognizances on remand to appear on the 27th instant. A charge of being drunk and disorderly has also been made against the four.

The assault case in which Mrs. Morgan is accused of assaulting the daughter of a neighbor, W. E. Ottaway, will be continued this morning. Mrs. Morgan is accused of poking a broom handle against the face of the child.

Local News

Accommodating Visitors.—The committee having in hand the arrangements for the reception of the teachers attending the three days' convention in this city next week request that those having room and board should leave their addresses at the Tourist Association rooms.

Benefit Concert.—All arrangements have been completed for the benefit concert for the widow and family of the late J. Redford of Alberni, to be given at the First Presbyterian church schoolroom at an early date. Mr. J. G. Brown the organizer of the concert has secured the assistance of the following well known artists: Mrs. G. J. Burnett, Mrs. Wm. Gregson, Mrs. Reid, Miss McCoy, Miss Underhill, Mr. and Mrs. Gideon Hicks, Wm. Allan, G. H. Larrigan, Jesse Longfield, Hugh Kennedy and W. D. Kinnaird—thus guaranteeing the success of the affair from an artistic standpoint. There are a few others that could not give a decided answer whose names will be published later.

Experience is the best teacher. Housekeepers, who have tried them all, say WINDSOR TABLE SALT is the perfect table salt.

Use telephone to Duncan.

The Hicks-Lovick Piano Co. have kindly offered the use of a piano.

Business Change.—At the regular monthly meeting of the board of directors of The Colonist Printing and Publishing Co., yesterday forenoon the resignation of the president, Mr. James Dunsmuir, was read. Mr. Dunsmuir having disposed of his interests in the company retires from the board of directors also.

Excursion From Everett.—Yesterday Victoria was invaded by a large party of excursionists from Everett, the Indianapolis bringing over approximately 800, the steamer arriving at 1 p. m. The excursion was organized by the Woodmen of the World of Everett and was accompanied by the Everett City band. The excursionists were well entertained while here by local brethren of the order and left on the return trip at 7 p. m.

Yorkshire Society.—The committee of the Yorkshire society held a meeting at Secretary Peirson's office last night, Colonel R. Wolfenden I. S. O., presiding when it was decided to hold the annual basket picnic at the Gorge on Saturday afternoon, July 7th. All Yorkshire people are invited to attend and bring their friends with them. Tombola and prizes as usual will be given.

Mrs. McKeon Dead.—The death occurred last evening at the residence of her son, No. 57 Frederick street, of Mrs. Margaret McKeon, relict of the late William McKeon, and mother of W. J. McKeon, of this city. Deceased was a well-known pioneer resident with a large list of acquaintances, and was aged 73 years. She was a native of West Meath, Ireland. The funeral has been arranged to take place tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence as above and at 2:15 from St. Barnabas' church.

Lacrosse In England.—The Canada, an illustrated weekly journal published in London, Eng., which is just to hand, contains a splendid half-tone cut of Mr. H. H. Allingham, a former resident of Vancouver but now of London. Mr. Allingham, who for many years was prominent in lacrosse circles in the East and also on the Pacific coast, has contributed a lengthy article on lacrosse in England which appears in the current issue of Canada. Mr. Allingham is taking a prominent part in lacrosse matters across the pond and is making efforts to have the English association adopt the rules of the Canadian organizations.

'Frisco's Death List.—E. E. Schmitz mayor of San Francisco, has sent out a circular letter protesting against the published statements to the effect that the loss of life as a consequence of the great disaster was 10,000 or more. He says: "Such statements are bound to do San Francisco a great deal of harm, especially when they are absolutely untrue. Up to the present time (and I believe that we have discovered the body of every one who lost his life in the catastrophe of April 18, 1906), the official record shows the death rate to be less than fifteen hundred. I feel sure that the statement that ten thousand died in San Francisco was not made with any desire to injure San Francisco, especially at this time, but was undoubtedly printed upon some information received, as it must have been from an unreliable source."

STREET CAR ACCIDENT

A street car accident which, luckily, did not result in serious damage occurred early last evening on Pandora street, when on a car on the Spring Ridge-Beacon Hill route, a fuse blowing out, a considerable blaze ensued which not only alarmed the passengers but did, in one instance at least, considerable damage to clothing.

The car was proceeding in the ordinary fashion, a few passengers being in the front end, when suddenly the mishap to the mechanical equipment occurred and the portion of the car mentioned was suddenly enveloped in flames.

As natural, the passengers thus situated became excited, and one, Mr. Harry Dods, an employee of the Colonist, jumped off the platform. The car being in motion he fell and received painful injuries, his knee being somewhat severely cut.

The official explanation of the accident is that a fuse blew out, and that the danger to the passengers was at no time very great.

MURDER AT HAZELTON

Further Particulars of the Killing of Two Halfbreeds.

Further details regarding the double murder near Hazelton, reported yesterday in these columns, have been received by Supt. F. S. Hussey of the provincial police. It seems that Simon Magun, an Indian of Kispiox, killed Alexander McIntosh, a halfbreed, and Max LeClair, also a halfbreed, who formerly lived in Victoria, where his family resided many years ago. Constable Kirby of the provincial police and a posse were in pursuit of the murderer, who had taken flight after committing the two crimes and slaughtering four horses he had on his farm at Kispiox. The attorney-general's department has offered a reward of $300 for his arrest.

Constable Kirby in a message telegraphed yesterday said: "The first murder, that of Alex. McIntosh, a halfbreed, took place at daybreak Monday, about half a mile from Two-Creek hotel. McIntosh was shot through the chest. He had a fight with the murderer, Simon Nagun, the previous evening. About noon on Monday the body of the second victim was found about a mile and a half from Hazelton, on the trail to Kispiox, this being Mac LeClair, halfbreed. He had been shot through the back, in a cold-blooded manner. LeClair had been shot within an hour of the first murder. He was apparently coming to Hazelton from his camp when shot."

Constable Kirby and others went to the murderer's ranch, but he was not found there. The police found that he had shot three of his own horses and killed the fourth with a pickaxe. The officers then went to Kispiox and Glenvowell and found the murderer's father, who they were holding on suspicion.

The inquest was held at Hazelton, and after the inquest the officers took up the chase of the murderer. Constable Kirby asked for more help.

Supt. Hussey wired to the constable, giving him authority to secure some special constables and supply them with firearms, and Indian Agent Loring of Hazelton as well as Constable Kirby were advised to post notices, that a reward of $300 will be paid for the arrest of the murderer, which is expected soon to be accomplished.

BATHROOMS

There are bathrooms and other bathrooms. There is the bathroom whose chilly discomfort shines from its hookless walls—while there is "nowhere to put anything." There is the bathroom encumbered with all kinds of left-overs from the rest of the house, fancy towel racks, mugs to hold the tooth brushes, with a forlorn strip of faded carpet over a varnished floor.
Hard to tell which kind is the more depressing, especially since nowadays a little thought, some planning and a very little outlay will make the bathroom what it should be—a place of comfort and cleanliness above everything else.

The Question of Towels
Bath Towels to begin with. Hand and Roller Towels have their place, but in a bathroom it's the great big bath towel which lords it over the rest. Here are a few of our best numbers: 25c., 50c., 75c., $1.00, $1.25 and $1.50.
The $1.50 Towel is an extra large towel, and is hemstitched at the ends.

Bath Robes For Men
Nothing like the Turkish Toweling Robe, after all. It "dries"—even after the drying process has been gone through with towels. Easily laundered—just as easily as a towel.
For traveling, the kinds of bath robes that can be easily packed are the best. A splendid line of light weight bath robes are shown in the Clothing Department.
Men's Turkish Bath Robes in dark and light colors, $4.00, $4.50, $5.00 to $8.75.

For the Bathroom Floor
After all is said there is nothing so good as Linoleum when it comes to a floor covering that's to stand all that is expected of the bathroom floor! Easily kept clean—a damp cloth will do all that is necessary.
Inlaid Linoleums, $1.00 and $1.25 yard.
Printed Linoleums, 50c. a yard.
Plain Brown Linoleum, 50c. a yard.
(These are all to be found on the third floor.)

Comfort in Bath Robes
No reason why a Bath Robe should not be as pretty as any other negligee. But there is every reason why it should be the acme of comfort in every way.
Women's Pretty Robes of Turkish Toweling, $5.75.
Women's Pretty Robes of German Flannel, $5.00.
Women's Pretty Robes of Eiderdown, $15.00.

Turkish Bath Mats
(STAPLE DEPARTMENT.)
"Linotow" Bath Mats are comprised of 80 per cent. linen warp, which makes them more absorbent and more durable; various sizes and designs, 75c., $1.00 and $1.50.
Bath Mats in fancy colors, plain and with the word "Bath" written on them; 75c., 90c., $1.00, $1.25, $1.50, $1.75 and $2.00.

Brushes and Sponges
Nail Brushes, 5c., 10c., 15c., 20c., 25c., 35c., 50c. and 75c.
Sponges, 15c., 25c., 35c., 50c., 75c., $1.00, $1.25 to $2.25.

Bath Room Requisites
There are two kinds of nickel plating—the right and the wrong. The right kind is plated over a brass body, and will not rust, the wrong kind is plated over iron, and is unsatisfactory from start to finish.
Nickel Towel Bars, 10 and 20 inches wide, 50c. and $1.00.
Nickel Towel Rollers, 20 inches x 1½ inches; runs easily; $2.50 each.
Nickel Swing Towel Bars in 2 sizes, $1.25 and $1.50.
Nickel Stand Soap Dishes with Drainer, 75c., 95c. and $1.25.
Toilet Paper Holders with Nickel Frame and Ebony Roller, 60c. and $1.25 each.
Toilet Paper Holders, all nickel, $1.75.
Combination Nickel Soap and Tooth Brush Holders, $3.50.
Combination Nickel Soap, Tumbler and Tooth Brush Holder, $5.00 and $6.50.
Nickel Sponge Holders and Soap Dish Combined, $2.00, $2.25 and $2.50.
Nickel Tooth Brush Racks, for 6 Brushes, 60c.
Heavy Nickel Bath Soap Dish, oval shape, $2.50.
Nickel Soap Dish for hanging on bath tub rim; can be moved to any part of rim; 50c.
Cold Shower Sprays, easily adjusted to tap; splendid during summer weather; made of heavy nickel plating; $1.50 and $2.00.
Oak and White Enamel Bath Seats, adjustable to any width of round or oval edge baths; $1.50 and $1.75.

Book and Stationery Department
Another lot of our "Louisine Linen" Paper, in blue, white and grey; 100 sheets and 75 envelopes; all for 65c. You should not miss this bargain.

For 15c. we will give you 1 dozen beautiful Foreign View Postals or Comic Postals. These cards are not cheaply got up, but are fine artistic cards. For 2 days only we will sell them at 15c. dozen.
